U.S., Soviet Spacemen 'Ready To Fly'

Moratorium Fails . . .

Station Fought At Ft. Calhoun

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Opponents of nuclear power, having lost their bid to impose a moratorium on all new nuclear power plants, are fighting plans to build a second nuclear power station at Ft. Calhoun.

In an apparent play on the name of the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD), the opponents are calling themselves the Nebraska Public Power Project.

They are seeking to block construction of the $810 million plant on several grounds, including charges that disposal of radioactive waste, the availability of nuclear fuel and safety factors have not been given due consideration.

Gary Gustafson, executive secretary of the Nebraska Power Review Board, said the protest was filed last Friday and probably will be aired before the board this Friday or next Monday.

To build the 1,150-megawatt Fort Calhoun #2, the Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) and NPPD, partners who plan to split the plant's costs and power generated, must receive the Power Review Board's sanction.

Prior to the protest, a hearing was slated for July 23 to air any opposition to the addition to the Ft. Calhoun nuclear. Gustafson said the protesters have also filed a motion requesting a delay in the hearing.

The group's protest was signed by Dennis Keefe, a Lincoln attorney; however, it did not indicate who belongs to the Nebraska Public Power Project.

Efforts to reach Keefe were unsuccessful Monday. However, people familiar with a recent attempt by Sen. Steve Fowler and others to enact a moratorium on all new nuclear plant construction said it involves some of the same people.

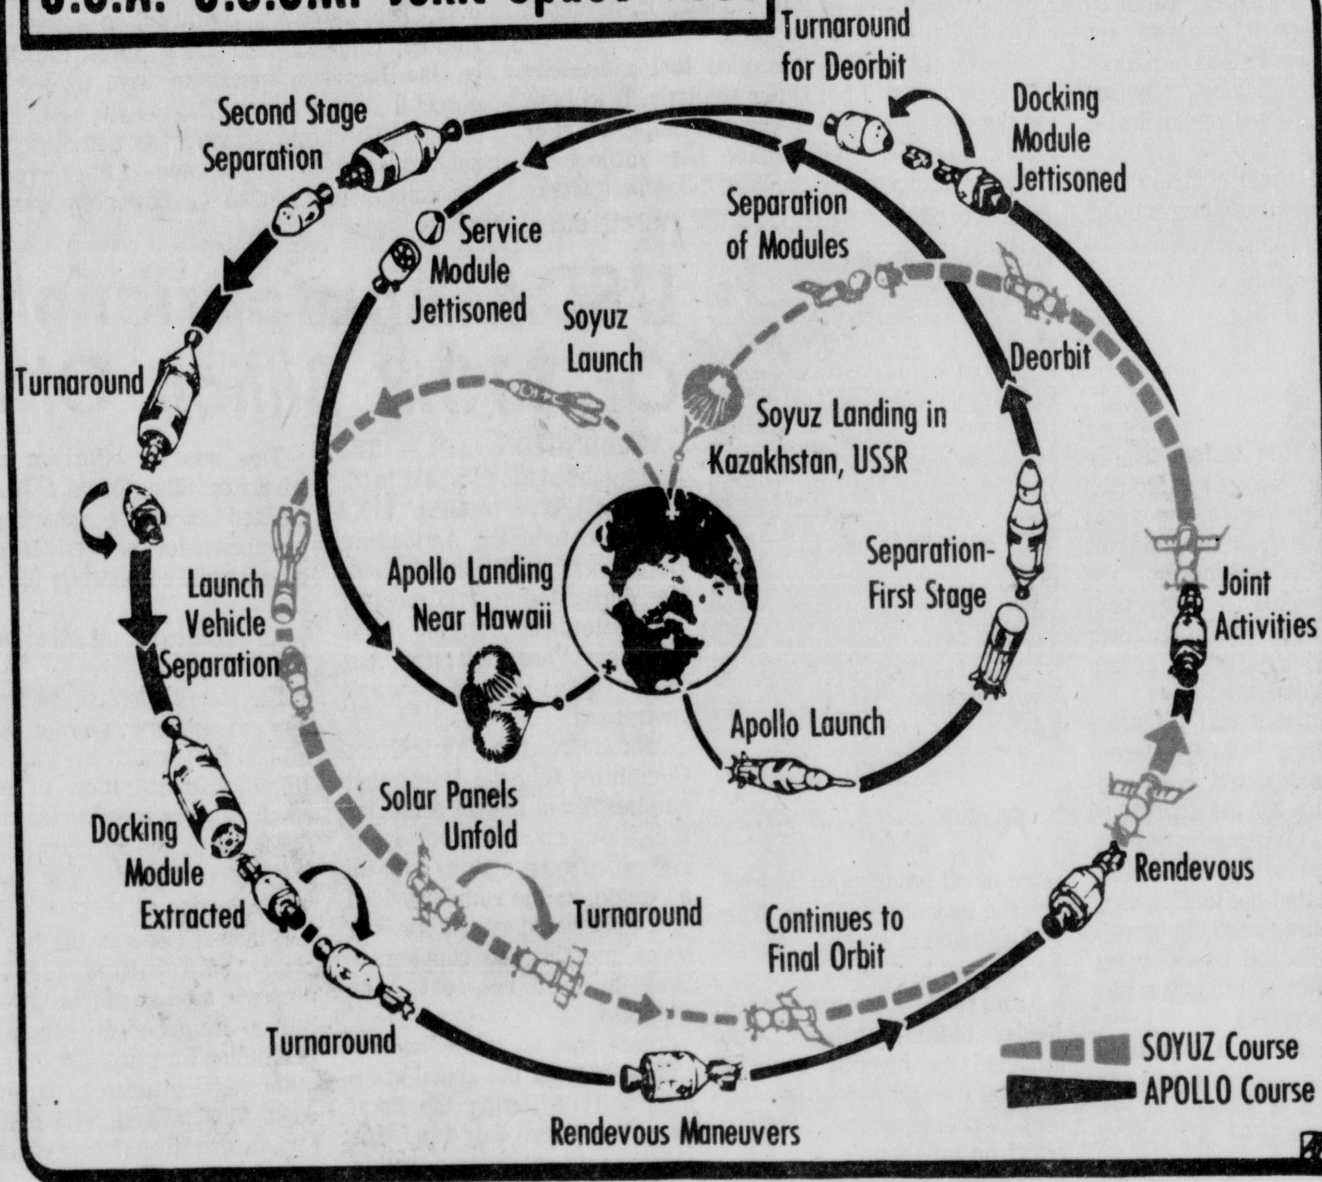

Presumably, the Nebraska Public Power Project consists of many of the same people who met in April to discuss means to block construction of Ft. Calhoun #2. Reports indicated 17 people from Omaha, Lincoln and Hastings attended that meeting.

The group at that time decided its goals are to stem the proliferation of nuclear power plants, develop alternate sources of power and enlighten the public on these alternatives.

Bob Steffen of Omaha was quoted as saying that the protest route is the opponents' "only recourse." He added, "it comes across negatively, I know, but I don't know what else to do."

The first Ft. Calhoun nuclear plant is in operation; the second plant is scheduled to be operating commercially on Jan. 1, 1983.

U.S.A.-U.S.S.R. Joint Space Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Apollo and Soyuz, built and manned by nations separated by ideology and distance, launch their adventure in detente and cooperation Tuesday as they head for the first international rendezvous in space.

"We are ready to fly," said Valeri Kubasov, one of the Soviet cosmonauts.

And so were their American counterparts, Thomas P. Stafford, Vance D. Brand and Donald K. Slayton. The spacecraft on two continents were nearing readiness on the precise time schedule set for them.

"The team is ready to go, everything is go," said Chester M. Lee, director of the American side of the U.S.-Soviet mission. For Americans, there will not be another "go" for a manned space mission until the end of the decade.

It will be a celestial chase, a Russian ship launched at 7:20 a.m. CDT from the Baikonur cosmodrome pursued by an American Apollo that lifts off from Cape Canaveral 7½ hours later at 2:50 p.m.

For the first time in a week, no storm clouds marred the central Florida sky and optimism replaced uncertainty for launch time. "Despite all the attention and discussion, I think the weather will be fine," said a launch official.

If all goes well the ships will dock over West Germany on Thursday. The linkup will be complete when Apollo commander Stafford and his Soviet opposite, Alexei Leonov, embrace and shake hands.

The brilliant Florida sunshine was perfect for some last minute jet trainer flights for the astronauts. They were described "in great spirits, smiling and talking to each other." They were still honing their language skills, speaking in Russian.

They were scheduled to sleep past the Soyuz liftoff hour and planned to watch it on videotape while eating breakfast.

Following a Russian preflight tradition, Leonov and copilot Kubasov visited the "memorial homes" of Yuri Gagarin and Sergei Korolev, two Soviet space heroes. Korolev was chief designer of the first Soviet space rocket system; Gagarin, the Soviets' first man in space, died in an airplane crash.

"We are ready to fly," Kubasov said. "We are symbolically reporting our readiness to these two great men." The homes are at the Baikonur launch site.

Leonov and Kubasov, like the astronauts, were to leave their crew quarters about three hours before launch time to take up positions in the spaceships. The launch centers were in constant communication, ready to halt operations should problems develop at either place.

A backup Soyuz was ready with a second crew should something go awry. There is no such American backup ship, but it has capabilities the Russians don't have and could be recycled for launching on four succeeding days.

The mission frankly is an exercise in international diplomacy, its experiments taking second place.

It ends a space supremacy effort that began 18 years ago when the Soviet Union hoisted Sputnik, an 84-pound ball. Its beeping signals from above the earth presaged a long string of launches, unmanned and then manned, that culminated with American walks on the moon and spacecraft with the flags of both nations seeking the secrets of the universe from the planets. America alone spent $28 billion on the race.

"On the eve of this flight we can see the continuing fruits of the cooperation of our countries and our spacemen," said Georgi T. Beregovoi, director of cosmonaut training in a prelaunch briefing. He spoke of the ushering of an era of international joint exploration and research.

"It represents a docking of technical ideas and styles of the people of the leading space powers," he said. "This is an example of how we can solve many different international problems in an atmosphere of cooperation and understanding."

His words echoed that of the five men who will fly the mission.

"Our joint flight means detente in space," Leonov said. Brand called it a "springboard to detente."

"Where detente will go is not clear to me, but I think we're off to a good start. We've found out that, unlike in the old days when we had the image of Russians banging their shoes on a table, that we've been pleasantly surprised and find that they can be cooperative and that we can work together to achieve an end."

The agreement that culminates in the mission was signed by former President

Richard N. Nixon and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin at their 1972 summit meeting in Moscow.

Stafford, 45, a brigadier general in the Air Force, has flown three space missions, including the Apollo 10 moon orbit journey that preceded the historic first landing of Apollo 11. His Oklahoma twang colors the Russian he learned in nearly 1,000 hours of training — so much so, that it often sent Leonov into laughter.

Brand is 44, an aeronautical engineer and onetime test pilot. This is his first space flight.

For Slayton, the third member of the Apollo crew, the flight is a personal triumph, which has made him a personal favorite of space buffs.

Slayton was one of the original seven Mercury astronauts, slated to take one of the pioneering flights. But a slight heart irregularity grounded him a few weeks before liftoff.

While he undertook a decade-long fight to be reinstated to flight status, Slayton remained with the space agency as director of flight crew operations, training other men for space.

The 40-year-old Leonov was the first man to walk in space, stepping outside the Voskhod 2 for 12 minutes in 1965. He is talkative, an extrovert with a constantly flashing smile.

Kubasov, also 40, flew in 1969 aboard one of three Soyuz ships in orbit at the same time. His personality contrasts with Leonov: he is quiet and reserved, a brilliant mechanical engineer.

Rejecting Street Projects 'Step Back'

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

"One step forward, two steps backward." That's how Public Works Director Bob Oberg described Monday's City Council action rejecting the widening of 48th St. and Holdrege St.

The lawmakers directed that resolutions be drafted for consideration next Monday which would kill those controversial plans to widen 48th from M to Bancroft and Holdrege from 28th to 46th.

However, by also sending those proposals back to the city administration, the council in essence left open the possibility that widening of those streets will be proposed once again.

Consideration of alternatives, including widening, will be made in conjunction with the update of the transportation portion of the new Comprehensive Plan.

Intent Thought Plain

While Councilman Bob Sikyta, who made the motion to kill the plans and send them back to the administration, said his intent was "quite plain," other lawmakers seemed rather fuzzy on the motion and its implications.

Councilman Max Denney couldn't see how widening could be one of the options after the council rejected that alternative.

And, he warned, if widening returns at some future date, he plans to fight "like Sam Hill to get it out."

"The people out there (along 48th and Holdrege) don't want it," he said, giving his reason for opposing the plans.

Councilwoman Sue Bailey, on the other hand, said the lawmakers couldn't just make a decision on 48th and Holdrege without first considering the city's overall street policy. Some of the alternatives being considered by the council would violate long-held city policy on other matters she suggested.

For instance, one suggestion is to run arterial streets closer together.

Planning Director Doug Brogden warned that it has been the policy, dating back to the 1952 Comprehensive Plan, not to penetrate residential neighborhoods with heavily traveled streets.

Based On Arterials

That neighborhood concept was based on having arterials at one-mile intervals, Brogden said, a hold-over from the days when the county put in major streets on section lines.

That policy was carried over into the Goals and Policy report in 1972, Brogden said.

Councilman Bob Jeambey, past chairman of the Goals and Policies Committee, said he didn't think the citizens "really wrestled" with that issue of street widening versus preservation of neighborhoods. He suggested the question be dropped back in the committee's lap for clarification.

Mayor Helen Boosalis, who repeatedly kept trying to get a sense of the council's direction on the matter, said she didn't see how the council could pull out two projects alone and act on them without considering street policy.

Jeambey wanted to do just that.

"I'm just trying to separate the philosophy from these projects," he said. He said he didn't think officials did their homework on the 48th and Holdrege street projects.

While Denney said he thinks the city's policy should be "no widening" on any streets, Holsinger said such a decision would rule out improvements along outlying roads. Some officials hope those streets will become major cross-town traffic carriers. Those roads include Superior, Old Cheney Road and 84th.

Sikyta rejected an attempt to split his motion in half — between rejecting the projects and asking the administration for further study.

In a related action the lawmakers indicated they would approve reports on three other proposed intersection improvements at 20th and Cornhusker Hwy., at 48th St. and Pioneers Blvd. and at 48th St. and Leighton Ave.

Lisa Ann Davis, 15, of 2221 Heather, died Monday from injuries she suffered in a traffic accident on the afternoon of July 8.

She was riding her bicycle north on Tipperary Trail when she collided with a car traveling east on Old Cheney Road driven by Amana T. Hiatt, 83, of 5121 Cleveland.

Miss Davis suffered head injuries as a result of the collision. She is the fourth person to die as a result of a traffic accident since Friday.

FBI Pulled Off Burglaries In Name Of U.S. Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI burglarized foreign embassies and other places in the United States for nearly 30 years to get information considered necessary for national security, FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley said Monday.

"Yes, the FBI has conducted surreptitious entries in securing information related to the security of the nation," Kelley said in response to questions at a news conference.

He declined to say how many break-ins were conducted, describing the number only as "a few" and "not many."

He also declined to identify specific targets of the break-ins, saying that he cannot discuss many details publicly because of the pending investigation by the Senate select committee probing the Central Intelligence Agency and FBI intelligence operations.

Asked whether there were FBI break-ins at foreign embassies in Washington, Kelley replied, "Without naming or designating victims or institutions, I can only say there were a few, concerned with counter-intelligence, foreign in nature, subsequent to 1966."

He also was asked whether civil rights organizations were among the burglary targets. "I'm not going to say anything about where they were or against which organizations they were directed, only to say they were, and I hope that will satisfy you," he replied.

He said later, however, that he did not intend to confirm that civil rights groups were burglarized.

Kelley said the break-ins began as early as World War II and continued through the 1960s.

He said former FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover changed the burglary policy in 1966 because he thought "in the context of the times, it was not a viable procedure."

"In 1966," he said, "all such activity was terminated except for a small amount regarding foreign intelligence, which we felt had a grave impact on the security of this nation."

Military Rule Predicted

Lisbon, Portugal (AP) — The moderate Popular Democratic party — PPD — decided Monday to pull out of the Portuguese government because of the lack of democratic guarantees and join the Socialists in opposition, a high party official said.

The official predicted that Portugal would be under full military rule within 48 hours, ending any pretense of civilian government.

A pullout by the two Popular Democratic ministers would leave the Communists as the only civilians in the cabinet, but Premier Vasco Goncalves is expected to use the opportunity to name an all-military cabinet, a step advocated by radical military leaders unhappy with party squabbling.

Almost all power, however, is already held by the military's 30-man Revolutionary Council, which was summoned into emergency session to grapple with the worst crisis since the military overthrew the old right-wing regime 14 months ago.

Following the withdrawal last week of the Socialists, the nation's biggest party, over a free press issue, the PPD gave a five-point ultimatum to President Francisco de Costa Gomes demanding assurances for Portuguese democracy. Goncalves made it plain to PPD officials in a private meeting that the demands were turned down, the party official said.

Joan Little Puts In Innocent Plea

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Joan Little, accused of killing a white jailer who was allegedly trying to rape her, pleaded innocent Monday after last minute defense motions slowed the start of her trial.

The plea cleared the way for jury selection in Wake County Superior Court.

The defense made several motions, including one for a mistrial after the state used its peremptory challenges to remove two black men and one black woman from the panel. The motion was denied.

Late Monday, Cornelia Howell, 20, a Raleigh waitress who is white, was seated as the first juror.

Miss Little, a 21-year-old black woman whose case has been championed by civil rights, women's rights and prison reform groups, is charged with first-degree murder in the icepick slaying of Clarence Allgood, 62, who worked at the Beaufort County jail.

She contends Allgood was attempting to rape her, that she stabbed him in self-defense and that she then ran for her life. Miss Little was in the jail while awaiting an appeal on a breaking and entering conviction. She surrendered eight days after the slaying.

The state contends Miss Little killed Allgood while trying to escape.

You've Nothing To Lose, But Kids

By DICK HOLMAN

When parents don't participate in schools' decisions, "The most important thing they lose is their child," says Nebraska PTA President Mrs. Everett Dietz of Omaha.

Nationally, there's been a general decline of about 7% in PTA membership. Mrs. Dietz said Nebraskans follow that trend, as the number of PTA members decreased from 38,466 in 1973-74 to 35,515 during the past school year.

Lincoln has only 4,224 PTA members.

To stimulate awareness of the PTA's major programs and activities and to increase membership, the National PTA in Chicago is mounting a nationwide, public service, magazine advertising campaign.

Decision Making

"We hope," said Mrs. Dietz, "that this new thrust will encourage more parents to participate" at the decision-making level in schools.

There is "much evidence to show that parents who participate with their children, through school, have a better understanding with their children than those who don't," she said. The latter are saying, "Have my child and do as you wish."

Mrs. Dietz said parents are becoming increasingly disinterested in PTA because, first, "We are faced with a great deal of people going to work who used to spend a great deal of time in volunteer service."

Have A Lot Of Clout

And "We didn't realize," Mrs. Dietz explained, "that we really had a lot of clout if we really use it . . . We were slow to say in a school that, 'We would like to help you decide'" matters that affect children.

That's been "too long in coming," she said.

If local PTA units first storm their own schools with activity and interest, then attend school board meetings and discuss needs with board members, more parents — "even though they're busy" — will want to be part of that "if they actually see us influencing decision-making," Mrs. Dietz said.

At the Nebraska PTA convention in October, delegates will "discuss some of the how-to's of doing this," she said, eyeing particularly a new project-how parents of elementary school students can influence budget-making.

A statewide membership drive will begin in the fall, to coincide with the national campaign, "The Today PTA." A Dallas, Tex., advertising agency will contribute its services free, and ask national magazines to donate space for the ads.

The target audience will be young parents and other support group members of various ages. The ads stress the need for parents, students and educators to join in determining the direction of education, and promoting children's welfare.

"I'm very much in favor of the lay parent having an input into education," Mrs. Dietz said, citing a civic "responsibility" to participate. And she included people who have no children in school, as well.

With seven million members in 33,000 schools, the National PTA is America's largest volunteer organization devoted solely to promoting youth welfare and improving the quality of education.

Soviets Likely To See Summit As Victory

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Writer

The European security conference at last has fixed the target date for a mass summit of 35 government chiefs, and the Soviet leadership will likely regard this as a singular victory for the foreign policy it has conducted for the last half dozen years.

The conference, expected to gather in Helsinki, Finland, July 30, has little of grave importance to do beyond ritualizing the end of World War II, substituting for a peace treaty that has been unachievable for three decades.

But the fact that the Soviet Union has campaigned for such a conference for 20 years suggests it has a number of abiding reasons for wanting this ceremonial to take place, however empty of accomplishment it might seem to some Western observers.

The conference will be the biggest thing by way of pomp and ceremony since the funeral of King Edward VII brought together in London all the crowned heads of Europe.

That extravaganza, only four years before the outbreak of the dreadful carnage of World War I, was the herald of political earthquakes: disintegration of mighty empires one after another — the German, the Austro-Hungarian, the Russian and then, gradually, the mightiest modern empire of all, the British.

This mass summit will be different. There aren't many crowned heads left, and those that remain aren't running governments.

This assemblage will be made up of the heads of the United States, the Soviet Union, Canada and all Eastern and Western Europe, including the microstates and the Vatican.

The presidents, prime ministers and assorted dictators will draw a line under World War II by agreeing that the borders it created are henceforth inviolate. This means a sort of permanent curtain between East and West, a buffer zone of Communist states created under Soviet guns.

It's all being done in the name of detente, a policy blessed by the international Communist movement at their Moscow meeting of 1969 and officially launched by the Soviet Communist congress — the 24th — of 1971.

Some in the West are going to be reminded of the Yalta agreements of 1945 that were a curtain-raiser to the era of cold war.

Pravda, the voice of the Kremlin, noted on the 30th anniversary of the Yalta summit of the British, Soviet and American leaders as World War II was petering out, that the agreements reached should serve as a model for relations between Communist and capitalist states.

Many in the West consider the Yalta pact to have been the precursor of the Sovietization of all East Europe. The trouble with Yalta was that the Soviet Union lost no time violating it, whenever that suited Kremlin purposes.

Today there's no guarantee that a security arrangement will not suffer similarly. It will not in the first place be a treaty, but simply a sort of mass executive agreement not subject to legislative approval in the West. Whether it works will depend entirely on good will on both sides.

The West is aware that in the many years of Soviet campaigning for this outcome, the aim had been to undermine the Atlantic alliance and also to prevent Western Europe from moving toward political and defense unity. The original Soviet idea had been that a security arrangement would create a peace euphoria that would make the American military presence in Western Europe seem less essential.

Even without the detente push, however, the alliance already is encountering painful difficulties at its western and eastern anchors, from the impact of political events.

Meantime, the Soviet bloc will feel safer than ever. The statesmen are about to agree those frontiers cannot be changed by force. Reluctantly, the Russians appear to have agreed that peaceful change is possible, but the memory of 1968 and Czechoslovakia is fresh, and Moscow is not expected to permit any political reform movements to threaten its hegemony over its sphere.

Ford Wants To Pry Off Domestic-Oil Price Lids

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford announced plans Monday to phase out price controls on domestic oil production over the next 2½ years. The White House predicted the move would push gasoline prices up another seven cents a gallon by the end of 1977.

Ford called the proposal a "compromise oil decontrol plan" and said he would submit it to Congress later in the week. The proposal will go into effect five days after it is formally submitted to Congress unless either the House or Senate votes to reject it.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a candidate for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination and frequent opponent of the administration's energy proposals, said he will seek Senate disapproval of the Ford plan.

The administration is required under the Petroleum Allocation Act to set price controls on oil produced in the United States. The price level is established by the Federal Energy Administration, subject to congressional veto. Under current FEA regulations there is a "two-tier" pricing system for oil produced in this country.

The price of about two-thirds of the oil produced in the United States is limited to $5.25 per barrel. The remainder can be sold at existing world prices, currently about $12.50 per barrel. About 40% of the oil consumed in the United States falls under the $5.25 limit.

Under Ford's proposal, the two-tier system would be eliminated and price ceilings on domestic oil would be phased upward, reaching an estimated $13.50 per barrel for all domestic oil by the end of 1977.

Ford indicated that if his proposal is rejected by Congress, he might veto legislation to extend the Petroleum Allocation Act beyond Aug. 31, which is when the current law expires.

Unless Congress succeeded in overriding such a veto, price controls would be eliminated immediately when the current law expires.

FORD... now 62.

price of oil products to "a level utterly unacceptable" to New England and predicted it would be rejected by Congress.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, who attended the meeting between Ford and congressional leaders, said "I am concerned about the effect on inflation."

Inflation "is now about 9.5 per cent, and may return to double digit inflation with an increase in the cost of gasoline," he said.

House Speaker Carl Albert said Ford "would get along better with Congress and the public" if he stretched out the decontrol plan.

USDA Appropriation Of $13.3 Billion OKd

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed Monday, 353 to 38, appropriations totaling $13.3 billion to fund the Agriculture Department and related agencies during the next 15 months.

The total is roughly what President Ford requested, but individual items were rearranged.

Moreover, the Agriculture Committee told the House that administration budget estimates for food stamps and other domestic food programs were inadequate, so the sums provided in the bill would carry these only seven months and supplementary budget requests are expected.

There was no immediate estimate of what the actual spending will be during the fiscal year that started July 1 plus the three-month transition period in which the government will switch to an Oct. 1 fiscal year.

Spending determines the deficit, now estimated by congressional budget makers at $68.8 billion for the current fiscal year.

Much of the debate was on two proposed amendments, neither of which was adopted.

One, defeated by voice vote, would have provided that any sales of wheat or other agricultural products to the Soviet Union or the oil-producing countries would have to be for cash, without benefit of favorable credit or other terms.

The other, which lost by three votes, 199 to 196, would have lopped off a $3 million contribution for research in cotton uses and promotion.

Kissinger Warns Developing Nations

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — In stern tones, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger warned developing nations Monday night to stop causing ideological confrontations in the United Nations with "lopsided, loaded... bloc voting."

"Those who seek to manipulate U.N. membership by procedural abuse may well inherit an empty shell," Kissinger said.

"The coerced are under no compulsion to submit," Kissinger said. "To the contrary, they are given all to many incentives simply to depart the scene, to have done with the pretense."

"The United States has been by far the largest financial supporter of the United Nations. But the support of the American people, which has been the lifeblood of the organization, will be profoundly alienated unless fair play predominates and the numerical majority respects the views of the minority," Kissinger declared.

"The American people are understandably tired of the inflammatory rhetoric against us, the all-or-nothing stance accompanied by demands of our sacrifice which too frequently dominate the meeting halls of the U.N."

A State Department official traveling with Kissinger was quick to discount any interpretation that the secretary was threatening a U.S. withdrawal from the United Nations. But the official did say that Kissinger's message was that continued confrontation by developing nations can only adversely affect "the commitment of important members, like the United States."

But the fact that the Soviet Union has campaigned for such a conference for 20 years suggests it has a number of abiding reasons for wanting this ceremonial to take place, however empty of accomplishment it might seem to some Western observers.

The conference will be the biggest thing by way of pomp and ceremony since the funeral of King Edward VII brought together in London all the crowned heads of Europe.

That extravaganza, only four years before the outbreak of the dreadful carnage of World War I, was the herald of political earthquakes: disintegration of mighty empires one after another — the German, the Austro-Hungarian, the Russian and then, gradually, the mightiest modern empire of all, the British.

This mass summit will be different. There aren't many crowned heads left, and those that remain aren't running governments.

This assemblage will be made up of the heads of the United States, the Soviet Union, Canada and all Eastern and Western Europe, including the microstates and the Vatican.

The presidents, prime ministers and assorted dictators will draw a line under World War II by agreeing that the borders it created are henceforth inviolate. This means a sort of permanent curtain between East and West, a buffer zone of Communist states created under Soviet guns.

It's all being done in the name of detente, a policy blessed by the international Communist movement at their Moscow meeting of 1969 and officially launched by the Soviet Communist congress — the 24th — of 1971.

Some in the West are going to be reminded of the Yalta agreements of 1945 that were a curtain-raiser to the era of cold war.

Pravda, the voice of the Kremlin, noted on the 30th anniversary of the Yalta summit of the British, Soviet and American leaders as World War II was petering out, that the agreements reached should serve as a model for relations between Communist and capitalist states.

Many in the West consider the Yalta pact to have been the precursor of the Sovietization of all East Europe. The trouble with Yalta was that the Soviet Union lost no time violating it, whenever that suited Kremlin purposes.

Today there's no guarantee that a security arrangement will not suffer similarly. It will not in the first place be a treaty, but simply a sort of mass executive agreement not subject to legislative approval in the West. Whether it works will depend entirely on good will on both sides.

The West is aware that in the many years of Soviet campaigning for this outcome, the aim had been to undermine the Atlantic alliance and also to prevent Western Europe from moving toward political and defense unity. The original Soviet idea had been that a security arrangement would create a peace euphoria that would make the American military presence in Western Europe seem less essential.

Even without the detente push, however, the alliance already is encountering painful difficulties at its western and eastern anchors, from the impact of political events.

Meantime, the Soviet bloc will feel safer than ever. The statesmen are about to agree those frontiers cannot be changed by force. Reluctantly, the Russians appear to have agreed that peaceful change is possible, but the memory of 1968 and Czechoslovakia is fresh, and Moscow is not expected to permit any political reform movements to threaten its hegemony over its sphere.

Ford Wants To Pry Off Domestic-Oil Price Lids

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford announced plans Monday to phase out price controls on domestic oil production over the next 2½ years. The White House predicted the move would push gasoline prices up another seven cents a gallon by the end of 1977.

Ford called the proposal a "compromise oil decontrol plan" and said he would submit it to Congress later in the week. The proposal will go into effect five days after it is formally submitted to Congress unless either the House or Senate votes to reject it.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a candidate for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination and frequent opponent of the administration's energy proposals, said he will seek Senate disapproval of the Ford plan.

The administration is required under the Petroleum Allocation Act to set price controls on oil produced in the United States. The price level is established by the Federal Energy Administration, subject to congressional veto.

Under current FEA regulations there is a "two-tier" pricing system for oil produced in this country.

The price of about two-thirds of the oil produced in the United States is limited to $5.25 per barrel. The remainder can be sold at existing world prices, currently about $12.50 per barrel. About 40% of the oil consumed in the United States falls under the $5.25 limit.

Under Ford's proposal, the two-tier system would be eliminated and price ceilings on domestic oil would be phased upward, reaching an estimated $13.50 per barrel for all domestic oil by the end of 1977.

Ford indicated that if his proposal is rejected by Congress, he might veto legislation to extend the Petroleum Allocation Act beyond Aug. 31, which is when the current law expires. Unless Congress succeeded in overriding such a veto, price controls would be eliminated immediately when the current law expires.

In a written statement distributed to reporters Monday morning, Ford said a veto would be "my only alternative" if his proposal for phasing out the price controls is rejected.

However, Ford toned that down later in the day, saying a veto would be "one alternative."

Ford estimated that the price hikes resulting from the decontrol proposal would trim consumption by 300,000 barrels of oil a day. Combined with his other conservation measures, Ford estimated the total savings would amount to 900,000 barrels per day. U.S. oil consumption totalled about 17 millions a day as of January 1975.

Ford predicted that phasing out the price controls would add 1 to 1½ cents to the price of gasoline by the end of this year, 4 cents by the end of 1976 and 7 cents by the end of 1977.

Democratic Gov. Thomas P. Salmon of Vermont, chairman of the New England Governors' Conference, said Ford's proposal has big oil companies "rubbing their hands in glee." He said the proposal would push the price of oil products to "a level utterly unacceptable" to New England and predicted it would be rejected by Congress.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, who attended the meeting between Ford and congressional leaders, said "I am concerned about the effect on inflation."

Inflation "is now about 9.5 percent, and may return to double digit inflation with an increase in the cost of gasoline," he said.

House Speaker Carl Albert said Ford "would get along better with Congress and the public" if he stretched out the decontrol plan.

USDA Appropriation Of $13.3 Billion OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed Monday, 353 to 38, appropriations totaling $13.3 billion to fund the Agriculture Department and related agencies during the next 15 months.

The total is roughly what President Ford requested, but individual items were rearranged.

Moreover, the Agriculture Committee told the House that administration budget estimates for food stamps and other domestic food programs were inadequate, so the sums provided in the bill would carry these only seven months and supplementary budget requests are expected.

There was no immediate estimate of what the actual spending will be during the fiscal year that started July 1 plus the three-month transition period in which the government will switch to an Oct. 1 fiscal year.

Spending determines the deficit, now estimated by congressional budget makers at $68.8 billion for the current fiscal year.

Much of the debate was on two proposed amendments, neither of which was adopted.

One, defeated by voice vote, would have provided that any sales of wheat or other agricultural products to the Soviet Union or the oil-producing countries would have to be for cash, without benefit of favorable credit or other terms.

The other, which lost by three votes, 199 to 196, would have lopped off a $3 million contribution for research in cotton uses and promotion.

This was an effort to curb what Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., termed excessive salary and perquisites for the president of a quasi-public corporation for cotton.

An effort to cut off aid to India also failed.

The House adopted, 307 to 86, an amendment adding $250 million for loans by the Farmers Home Administration to help small farmers meet water standards set by the Environmental Protection Agency. The loans would be for 40 years at 5%.

Principal items in the bill include $5.6 billion for the domestic food programs, up $205 million from budget estimates; $4.3 billion for price support and other agricultural programs, down $183 million; $1.5 billion for international programs, down $244 million; and $1.5 billion for rural development and assistance programs, up $204 million.

The bill also contains provision for $7.2 billion in direct and insured loans.

Kissinger Warns Developing Nations

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — In stern tones, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger warned developing nations Monday night to stop causing ideological confrontations in the United Nations with "lopsided, loaded... bloc voting."

"Those who seek to manipulate U.N. membership by procedural abuse may well inherit an empty shell," Kissinger said.

"The coerced are under no

compulsion to submit," Kissinger said. "To the contrary, they are given all to many incentives simply to depart the scene, to have done with the pretense."

"The United States has been by far the largest financial supporter of the United Nations. But the support of the American people, which has been the lifeblood of the organization, will be profoundly alienated unless fair play predominates and the numerical majority respects the views of the minority," Kissinger declared.

"The American people are understandably tired of the inflammatory rhetoric against us, the all-or-nothing stance accompanied by demands of our sacrifice which too frequently dominate the meeting halls of the U.N."

A State Department official traveling with Kissinger was quick to discount any interpretation that the secretary was threatening a U.S. withdrawal from the United Nations. But the official did say that Kissinger's message was that continued confrontation by developing nations can only adversely affect "the commitment of important members, like the United States."

Five Believed Drowned In Northeast

By The Associated Press

Five persons were believed drowned in the Northeast Monday as three days of heavy rains sent rivers and streams over their banks, flooding highways and homes.

In Nutley, N.J., police said Louis Belcato, 18, a city worker, drowned after he and another man jumped into the Third River in an effort to save two boys.

After Belcato and his companion were rescued, police said they were taken to a hospital, but they died.

Killer Sentenced To 11 Life Terms

Hamilton, Ohio (UPI) — James Ruppert, convicted of killing 11 of his relatives — the largest mass murder of members of one family in U.S. history, Monday was sentenced to 11 consecutive terms of life in prison.

nion, Frank Reiss, were swept away by the flood waters, two Nutley policemen followed suit, only to be swept away.

A short time later police rescued Reiss and patrolman Robert Malanga about 40 feet past a bridge. Patrolman John Guerino, who at first had been believed drowned, was trapped in an air pocket under the bridge and pulled to safety later. Belcato's body also was recovered.

Officers said Charles Capapazola, 17, of Warren Township, N.J., disappeared while wading in a flood-swollen neighborhood creek in an inner tube, and police recovered the body of an unidentified elderly man in the Passaic River between Kearny and Lyndhurst in New Jersey.

Pennsylvania state police searched Swamp Creek in suburban Philadelphia for a 17-year-old boy believed caught in a canoe in the rain swollen stream.

Another youth, swimming with a friend near Dover, Del., was dragged away by spillway current at the edge of a lake. He was identified as Thomas Finger, 17.

Rosenberg Sons Want Files Bared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring they are "firmly convinced of the innocence" of their executed parents, the sons of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg filed suit Monday in an attempt to bare all the government's files on the celebrated espionage case.

Robert and Michael Meeropol asked the U.S. District Court to order the handover of all such records from the FBI, the CIA, the Energy Resources Development Administration, the Department of Justice and U.S. attorneys' offices in New Mexico and New York.

Their suit, filed under provisions of the Freedom of Information Act, also seeks an injunction barring any further destruction of the materials in the wake of a recent disclosure that the U.S. attorney in New Mexico had "pulped" records on David Greenglass, who was a key government witness against the Rosenbergs.

The Rosenbergs were executed 22 years ago after they were convicted of passing the secret of the atomic bomb to the Soviet Union. The couple insisted innocence to the end, and doubt over the verdict has been expressed from many quarters over the years.

Last month, the Justice Department announced it had ordered the FBI to turn over to the Rosenbergs' sons as much as possible from an estimated 48,000 pages of files relating to the case.

But the two Meeropols, who now go by the name of the family that adopted them, told reporters outside the courthouse Monday that they had witnessed only "government footdragging" on the matter. "All we have is promises — no files, no inventory of files, and no time table for release," said Robert Meeropol, 28.

The brothers claim their parents were victims of the government's lust for a political victory — rather than justice — at a time of anti-Communist frenzy in America. They charge in the suit that prosecutors attempted to extort a confession from their parents, and, failing that, orchestrated the testimony and improperly communicated with the trial judge in order to gain conviction and the death penalty.

Conviction Of Chapin Is Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals upheld on Monday the conviction of former presidential appointments secretary Dwight L. Chapin on charges of lying to a grand jury investigating political dirty tricks by the Nixon White House.

U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell sentenced Chapin on May 16, 1974, to serve 10 to 30 months in prison following the 34-year-old White House aide's conviction in a jury trial.

The jury found that Chapin lied when he denied knowing that Watergate dirty tricks artist Donald Segretti had gone after specific Democratic presidential candidates like Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine.

Friend Denies Nixon Moving

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Robert Abplanalp, the multimillionaire close friend of Richard M. Nixon, has denied that the former president planned to move to the East or join him in any business projects.

Leo Murray, assistant director of public relations for Precision Valve Corp., which Abplanalp owns, quoted Abplanalp as saying he was "unaware of any specific plans relating to the disposal of San Clemente or of Mr. Nixon moving East."

According to U.S. News & World Report magazine, Abplanalp and Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo have urged Nixon to sell his San Clemente estate and move to Westchester, a suburb of New York, as a way of getting out of his financial bind.

A Flaw In The Budget

Although the total city budget is down a little from last year, rising operational costs have prompted Mayor Helen Boosalis to recommend an executive budget requiring a modest jump in the city property tax. It is the operational part of the budget which takes the lion's share of local tax money.

Still, even with a proposed slight hike in the mill levy, Mrs. Boosalis is hewing the basic hold-the-line position followed by her predecessor.

Capital improvements have been cut back significantly from last year's level and in one of the new mayor's capital improvements recommendations we see a problem.

So far as programs and services are concerned, the budget is hold-the-line, as we noted, but not merely a continuation budget. The first Boosalis budget breaks some new ground and upgrades some existing programs.

For example, the mayor has recommended funds to hire an administrator in her office — someone who might help in the reorganization of city departments — and an economic development coordinator who might be placed in the Community Development Department. These are two new positions, although the mayor is overall not recommending a significant increase in the number of city workers but is recommending, rather, that supervisors make do without filling existing vacancies if possible.

The budget also provides initial funding for a program which ultimately calls for the computerization of all traffic lights at signalized intersections and the budget also makes a commitment to mass transit improvement by allocating funds for the purchase of new buses for the Lincoln Transportation System.

Parks development and maintenance have been favored in the fiscal 1975-76 capital improvements budget, including initial funding for Crescent Greens development and another healthy chunk of money for the tree planting program. With the elm trees in Lincoln in their sorriest state ever this year, the City Council might even be persuaded to consider whether or not the tree planting program should be accelerated.

It is in the capital improvements area where we think the mayor is off base.

Mrs. Boosalis is recommending that the proposed swimming pool at Seacrest Park ($350,000) and an addition to Bennett Martin Public Library downtown ($450,000) be submitted to a vote of the people. A project entailing the restoration of the old City Hall and Federal Building might also be put on the ballot. The mayor has suggested a vote on a general obligation bond issue next spring.

We think the city should be very careful to observe the requirements of equity and consistency when making decisions on the capital improvements program.

Last summer it was decided to provide funding for a new swimming pool in the Meadow Lane area in the last city budget. The need for a pool in the Meadow Lane area was thought to be slightly greater than the need for a pool at Seacrest Park, thus the folks residing in the latter area were advised to wait a year.

In divvying up capital improvements among the neighborhoods, we think the mayor and council have to be consistent. They shouldn't routinely approve such projects themselves over a period of years and then decide to throw out the next project to a public vote when there is a money crisis, real or imagined.

To our way of thinking such a course would only tend to stimulate a rebirth of geographical politics in Lincoln and that the city doesn't need.

Add to that the fact that neighborhood swimming pools, library additions and performing arts centers each have narrow constituencies which are different one from the other. How much fairness would there be in lumping the projects together in a bond issue vote of all the people in the city?

In Space, Much Is Possible

The "handshake in space" is being viewed from a number of different angles.

The doubters and critics of the U.S. space program may feel this is just another waste of money which could be channeled to solving earthly problems.

The doubters and critics of the policy of detente in this country are suggesting that the Soviets will only come off better again in this "exchange" of space technology. And many of the critics of detente — and many of its supporters — are wondering how meaningful the joint space flight is if the superpowers can't agree on the ground. There are, after all, pressing issues on which the two nations are having tremendous difficulty in coming to agreement: the Middle East, controlling the nuclear arms race, the question of officially acknowledging the Soviet conquests in World War II, the questions of international human rights, of energy, China and so forth.

But perhaps it is time to concentrate for a moment on accomplishing the possible and in space, as opposed to earth, man has proved that it is possible to accomplish many things.

The space effort beginning today will be tied up with the political relationship between the participating nations, no doubt. But it can and should stand alone as nothing more than a technological advancement which serves the species.

One nation, no matter how rich and powerful, does not have the resources to commit, to extensively exploring outer space. But the planet does. We need to combine the genius of men.

This Is A Liberal?

NEW YORK — The lingering power of an image was never better demonstrated than in the decision of the President Ford Committee to make no effort toward the nomination of Nelson Rockefeller for vice president next year.

Howard Callaway, the campaign chairman, said he had no intention of alienating "persons who don't want Rockefeller" — obviously meaning conservatives who have been demanding an "open convention" for the choice of a vice presidential nominee.

Leaving Rockefeller to fend for himself is no doubt sound strategy and good politics, even though it seems somewhat incongruous after President Ford nominated him last year to be vice president. But the wonder is that the Republican conservatives — still a powerful party element — continue to think of Nelson Rockefeller after all these years as a liberal.

The reason can be only the powerful memories remaining from Rockefeller's epic battle with Barry Goldwater for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination. One of the bitterest of modern campaigns, it ended with the unforgettable spectacle of Rockefeller being booed and howled down by a convention thoroughly dominated by Goldwater conservatives.

The truth is, however, that Rockefeller even then was not the mushy liberal on foreign affairs that the conservatives thought him; and since then he has moved steadily to the right on domestic issues, too.

The conservatives may want one certifiably of their own — Ronald Reagan or James Buckley — on the ticket, but they have little more reason to oppose Rockefeller on political grounds than they do Ford himself.

Once a strong advocate, for example, of civil rights bills that apply mostly to the south, Rockefeller has not been heard from lately on this issue — except to observe that nobody had asked so many blacks to move into American cities. In his last years as governor of New York, he made numerous efforts — as he put it in 1973 — "to get the cheats and chiselers off the taxpayers' backs," including two separate bills to prevent welfare payments to persons living in New York for less than a year. The Supreme Court struck down both.

Rockefeller's last major proposal as governor was one of the most severe crime and drug-abuse programs ever approved in this country. It imposed long mandatory sentences for drug offenders, sharply limited the possibilities of parole and plea bargaining, and established mandatory prison sentences for all second offenders. A person convicted of possessing or selling less than an eighth of an ounce of a drug had to be sentenced to a minimum of a year in prison, with mandatory life time parole — a singularly harsh provision that the New York State Legislature has just softened substantially. Originally, Rockefeller had proposed life sentences even for first-time selling of small amounts of hashish.

On the deepest and most devious political issues of the last decade — Vietnam and Watergate — conservatives can hardly fault Rockefeller. He always supported the war and called for the bombing of North Vietnam a year before President Johnson began it. He never publicly criticized Richard Nixon or spoke out on Watergate, except to insist that it was "a tragedy of individuals" rather than of the Republican Party, and he was one of the first to applaud Ford's pardon of Nixon, calling it an act of "conscience, compassion and courage."

In 1972, Rockefeller earned the ultimate acknowledgement of these efforts. Sen. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, guru of gurus on the right wing, after watching the governor place Nixon's name in nomination for the presidency ("I say to you . . . my fellow Americans, we need this man"), observed that while Rockefeller might still be a little "too liberal for the South . . . the general feeling is that he has moved toward the conservative side."

In fact, Nelson Rockefeller had always been on that side of national security issues. It is generally forgotten that his "Pact of Fifth Avenue" with Richard Nixon in 1960 forced Nixon to promise more not less defense spending. Long before 1964, Rockefeller opposed the nuclear test ban treaty, approved the use of force against Cuba and "as an integral part of international diplomacy," denounced peaceful coexistence with the Soviet Union, and proclaimed his belief that nuclear war would "not mean annihilation or the end of the civilization we have known."

Who Will Speak?

WASHINGTON — Some thoughts on the apparent political battle taking shape between Gerald Ford, who has just announced his 1976 candidacy, and Ronald Reagan, who has just approved formation of a "Reagan for President" Committee.

First, let us discount the words of Reagan advisers who, in their flush of excitement, spoke of taking on the President in as many as 30 primaries. It won't happen. Tackling an incumbent president is not that routine — not like a primary clash between two lesser politicians. When a president is vulnerable, the wounds and embarrassment of a single primary may suffice. Harry Truman in 1952 and Lyndon Johnson in 1968 both announced their retirement after weak showings in New Hampshire's early primary.

On the other hand, a strong president — like Richard Nixon in 1972 — can dispose of his intra-party opposition in just one or two primaries. Then the contest is over. Consequently, my guess is that if both men, Reagan and Ford, are still active candidates in February, 1976, the race will be decided quickly.

Meanwhile, from Ronald Reagan's standpoint, formation of an unofficial exploratory committee came just in time. The Californian's political credibility — that is to say, faith in his private commitment to oppose Mr. Ford — had been falling like a Bermuda barometer in hurricane season. Now Reagan has partly stemmed the tide of doubt and disaffection, even though his supporters know that by November or December, his final decision may still be negative. Additionally, the formation of a Reagan committee may undercut John Connally, who had begun to score points with conservatives annoyed by Reagan's indecisiveness. Behind the facade of personal rivalry in the Reagan versus Ford contest there also lurks a fundamental regional and ideological division in the Republican Party. Bluntly put, the Gerald Ford-Nelson Rockefeller team represents the old party "Establishment" based in the Northeast, Great Lakes and Northern Pacific

WASHINGTON — In 1972 Cambridge Survey Research, public opinion analysts, asked people whether they agreed with this statement: "Over the last few years this country's leaders have consistently lied to the American people." Of those asked, 38% agreed. A similar poll was taken in 1974, and 55% agreed with the statement. This spring, 68% agreed.

Those figures illuminate the obvious: To a dangerous degree, Americans have lost confidence in the word of their government. Such distrust may be endemic in other countries, but it is a relatively new phenomenon in the United States, and a corrupting one. Moreover, it persists even after the replacement of a President who made lying a way of life by one thought of as candid.

An outstanding example of survival by deceivers is that of Richard Helms, the former director of Central Intelligence, now U.S. Ambassador to Iran.

On Feb. 7, 1973, Helms appeared before a closed session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for a hearing on his nomination as ambassador. The transcript, subsequently published, includes the following (Southerners like Campaign Manager Bo Callaway are mere window-dressing). This element — the people who controlled the GOP from Civil War days to 1964 — regained control in 1974 through the Ford and Rockefeller appointments rather than through convention processes or actual election.

Now the insurgent conservative forces concentrated in the South, Southwest, Rocky Mountains, Plains and ethnic districts hope to use the Reagan candidacy as a vehicle to win back control. If they can't, many of the elements that came into the "New Majority" coalition during the sixties and early seventies, may pass right on through and look for an independent presidential candidate in 1976.

When (and if) Ronald Reagan actually challenges Gerald Ford, wise observers will watch whether he confronts the administration on the "Social Issue" — welfare, neighborhood schools, the media, textbooks, and the domestic cultural roots of U.S. defeat in Vietnam. This is where the Ford administration's silence (or worse, collusion with liberal interests) has been especially offensive to conservatives. And this is also where Reagan must build the foundations of any understanding with George Wallace, without which Reagan cannot hope to win in November.

The bottom line is even simpler. In a recent Wall Street Journal article, reporter Dennis Farney observed that Gerald Ford's brand of status quo conservatism is "the traditional big business-country club type," and that he spends many of his "happiest moments" golfing with corporation lobbyists at Washington's Burning Tree Country Club. As a result, Mr. Ford's policies often seem to emphasize business interests and neglect the woes of South Boston, Levittown or Kansas.

Somebody must stick up for Middle America. Somebody must speak for "activist" conservatives against the status quo mentality. But Ronald Reagan has yet to prove his willingness to tackle Burning Tree.

Helms: Study In Survival By Deceit exchanges with Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri.

Symington: "Did you try in the Central Intelligence Agency to overthrow the government of Chile?"

Helms: "No, sir."

Symington: "Did you have any money passed to the opponents of Allende?"

Helms: "No, sir."

Since that testimony, it has become known that the Nixon Administration authorized the CIA to spend more than $5 million on covert activities in Chile between Allende's election as president in 1970 and his fall in 1973. The cash went to anti-Allende civic groups, newspapers, radio stations and others, with the aim of making it impossible for Allende to govern.

Helms has explained that he took Symington's second question to refer to Allende's two actual "opponents" in the 1970 election — and the CIA gave them no money. That is a strained argument, to put it mildly, since the first question was so clearly about the post-election period. And in any event, the CIA did give $500,000 to opposition party personnel during the 1970 election.

In the confirmation hearings, Sen. Clifford Case of New Jersey mentioned the known use of Army intelligence to report on the anti-war movement. This exchange followed:

Case: "Do you know anything about any activity on the part of the CIA in that connection? Was it asked to be involved?"

Helms: "I don't recall whether we were asked, but we were not involved because it seemed to me that was a clear violation of what our charter was."

The Rockefeller Commission has just reported that the CIA under Helms set up a Special Operations Group to "collect information on dissident Americans." It ran Operation Chaos; infiltrating the anti-war movement and collecting on a computerized list "the names of more than 300,000 persons and organizations." Even by recent standards of official untruth, Helms's "not involved" must set a record.

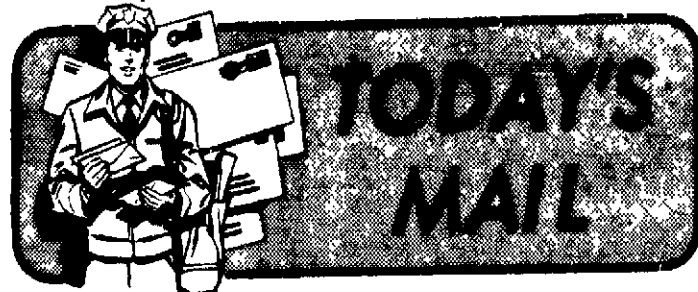

In the confirmation hearings Helms was also asked about any CIA connection with E. Howard

Hunt Jr. and G. Gordon Liddy, the convicted Watergate burglars. He said there had been no connection since Hunt retired from the agency in 1970. Later it was learned that the CIA had supplied Hunt and Liddy with equipment for their burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in 1971. Helms explained that he thought the questions had related only to the Watergate break-in.

No one has called Helms effectively to account for his testimony. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the immediate victim of his deception, recalled him but asked unfocused and deferential questions.

As for President Ford, at whose pleasure ambassadors serve, he has not been heard to murmur a critical word about Helms. The government's failure to bring a particular perjury case may always be explained by technical or evidentiary problems. But anyone who wonders why Americans have grown cynical about those who govern them might think about this question: Why does Richard Helms still hold the rank of ambassador?

Bicycles To Pass

Lincoln, Neb.

Isn't there anywhere cyclists can ride except smack in the middle of the driving lane on Capital Parkway? Hardly a day passes that I don't encounter this, driving to or from work. I was once asked why Nebraskans are so easy-going and why the majority of us seem to take our time at whatever we do. I myself think this is in conjunction with why Nebraskans are so acculturated.

Here we sit, in a not-too-urbanized state of rural communities where we can objectively observe the massive dehumanization occurring in the larger cities of this country. We still have our genuine sub-tribes or social groups to give us psychological companionship.

On the other hand, in the large metropolises, people are forced to form pseudo-tribes — pseudo-relationships to keep them from being psychologically starved in the midst of plenty.

Perhaps we in Nebraska must lead the way in a new program of mental health, to prevent people from isolating themselves from the beauties of nature and specifically from the totally biological nature of man to share in social inter-relationships.

Reasons For Protest

Lincoln, Neb.

It's like a fresh spring shower when citizens rise in righteous wrath at being pushed around by "der city foddors" and their flights of fancy. They are now wanting to uproot some 268 trees, shrubs, and flowers to make a four-lane gray cement ribbon of paving along South 48th.

How dare they confiscate property owners' front yards? Such expense to home-owners does not increase the land's value as much as the beauty of shading trees and bright flowers.

Far from least or last are the protests by merchants at the Piedmont Shopping Center which was so carefully planned and is used and enjoyed. The lengthy construction work, adding islands and mini-parks would be a sudden disruption of business for all sales personnel, with the loss of shoppers who would go to other centers to buy.

Another unplanned "dud" seems to be the farmers' market. Parking for buyer and seller is a joke. Carrying sacks of food great distances isn't worth the effort.

Los Angeles has such a huge market. Parking is blocks away. People wander every which way and no cars are allowed in the area. The thousands of shoppers seem at ease, some even buying at the fish market which smells to high heaven.

Let's construct — not destroy.

A Flaw In The Budget

Although the total city budget is down a little from last year, rising operational costs have prompted Mayor Helen Boosalis to recommend an executive budget requiring a modest jump in the city property tax. It is the operational part of the budget which takes the lion's share of local tax money.

Still, even with a proposed slight hike in the mill levy, Mrs. Boosalis is hewing the basic hold-the-line position followed by her predecessor.

Capital improvements have been cut back significantly from last year's level and in one of the new mayor's capital improvements recommendations we see a problem.

So far as programs and services are concerned, the budget is hold-the-line, as we noted, but not merely a continuation budget. The first Boosalis budget breaks some new ground and upgrades some existing programs.

For example, the mayor has recommended funds to hire an administrator in her office — someone who might help in the reorganization of city departments — and an economic development coordinator who might be placed in the Community Development Department. These are two new positions, although the mayor is overall not recommending a significant increase in the number of city workers but is recommending, rather, that supervisors make do without filling existing vacancies if possible.

The budget also provides initial funding for a program which ultimately calls for the computerization of all traffic lights at signalized intersections and the budget also makes a commitment to mass transit improvement by allocating funds for the purchase of new buses for the Lincoln Transportation System.

Parks development and maintenance have been favored in the fiscal 1975-76 capital improvements budget, including initial funding for Crescent Greens development and another healthy chunk of money for the tree planting program. With the elm trees in Lincoln in their sorriest state ever this year, the City Council might even be persuaded to consider whether or not the tree planting program should be accelerated.

It is in the capital improvements area where we think the mayor is off base.

Mrs. Boosalis is recommending that the proposed swimming pool at Seacrest Park ($350,000) and an addition to Bennett Martin Public Library downtown ($450,000) be submitted to a vote of the people. A project entailing the restoration of the old City Hall and Federal Building might also be put on the ballot. The mayor has suggested a vote on a general obligation bond issue next spring.

We think the city should be very careful to observe the requirements of equity and consistency when making decisions on the capital improvements program.

Last summer it was decided to provide funding for a new swimming pool in the Meadow Lane area in the last city budget. The need for a pool in the Meadow Lane area was thought to be slightly greater than the need for a pool at Seacrest Park, thus the folks residing in the latter area were advised to wait a year.

In divvying up capital improvements among the neighborhoods, we think the mayor and council have to be consistent. They shouldn't routinely approve such projects themselves over a period of years and then decide to throw out the next project to a public vote when there is a money crisis, real or imagined.

To our way of thinking such a course would only tend to stimulate a rebirth of geographical politics in Lincoln and that the city doesn't need.

Add to that the fact that neighborhood swimming pools, library additions and performing arts centers each have narrow constituencies which are different one from the other. How much fairness would there be in lumping the projects together in a bond issue vote of all the people in the city?

Cozad, Neb.
I was once asked why Nebraskans are so easy-going and why the majority of us seem to take our time at whatever we do. I myself think this is in conjunction with why Nebraskans are so acculturated.

Here we sit, in a not-too-urbanized state of rural communities where we can objectively observe the massive dehumanization occurring in the larger cities of this country. We still have our genuine sub-tribes or social groups to give us psychological companionship.

On the other hand, in the large metropolitan areas, people are forced to form pseudo-tribes — pseudo-relationships to keep them from being psychologically starved in the midst of plenty.

Perhaps we in Nebraska must lead the way in a new program of mental health, to prevent people from isolating themselves from the beauties of nature and specifically from the totally biological nature of man to share in social inter-relationships.

Reasons For Protest

Lincoln, Neb.
It's like a fresh spring shower when citizens rise in righteous wrath at being pushed around by "der city foddors" and their flights of fancy. They are now wanting to uproot some 288 trees, shrubs, and flowers to make a four-lane gray cement ribbon of paving along South 48th.

How dare they confiscate property owners' front yards? Such expense to home-owners does not increase the land's value as much as the beauty of shading trees and bright flowers.

Far from least or last are the protests by merchants at the Piedmont Shopping Center which was so carefully planned and is used and enjoyed. The lengthy construction work, adding islands and mini-parks would be a sudden disruption of business for all sales personnel, with the loss of shoppers who would go to other centers to buy.

Another unplanned "dud" seems to be the farmers' market. Parking for buyer and seller is a joke. Carrying sacks of food great distances isn't worth the effort.

Los Angeles has such a huge market. Parking is blocks away. People wander every which way and no cars are allowed in the area. The thousands of shoppers seem at ease, some even buying at the fish market which smells to high heaven.

Let's construct — not destroy.

SOD-BUSTER

Hunt Jr. and G. Gordon Liddy, the convicted Watergate burglars. He said there had been no connection since Hunt retired from the agency in 1970. Later it was learned that the CIA had supplied Hunt and Liddy with equipment for their burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in 1971. Helms explained that he thought the questions had related only to the Watergate break-in.

No one has called Helms effectively to account for his testimony. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the immediate victim of his deception, recalled him but asked unfocused and deferential questions.

Lincoln Head Start Has Slots For Pre-Schoolers

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Head Start program for pre-school children still has openings in its center- and home-based programs, director Shirlee Hutcherson said Monday.

"Many people wait until about time for school to start" before registering, but the program may be filled by then, Mrs. Hutcherson said. She urged interested parents to contact the Head Start office before Aug. 15.

The office and the center-based program are located in Elliott School, 225 S. 25th. "Transportation is provided for children outside reasonable walking distance," she said.

Head Start offers a three- to four-hour educational program daily. A snack and lunch are provided free to all children at the center. All children in families who meet eligibility guidelines "will receive a physical and dental examination at no cost," she said.

To qualify, a family with two children must have an annual income of $4,320 or less, and with four children, $5,560 or less. Those are U.S. Office of Child Development levels, which are slightly higher than government poverty maximums, thus allowing more families to participate, she said.

Eighty children have already registered for the center-based program, which can accommodate 120 this coming school year. The home-based program for 3-year-olds is about one-fourth full to date, and can serve a total of 40.

In the expanded home-based program, Head Start staff members will go into the home and work with parents to help them educate their children.

Lincoln referral agencies such as public health nurses, churches and welfare offices can supply information about the program, and past Head Start parents are recruiting door-to-door to allow 3- and 4-year-olds in eligible families to participate.

For more information, parents may call Mrs. Hutcherson at 475-8239 or 475-8325 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

At the Malone Community Center, 2030 T, there are also openings in the Head Start Day Care Center, according to director Margaret Connealy.

The program operates from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. for children aged 2½ and up until they enter kindergarten. Breakfast, lunch and an afternoon snack are served.

Income eligibility requirements are the same as for the regular Head Start program, Mrs. Connealy said; in addition, parents must work at least 20 hours weekly, or be enrolled in a training program or attending school.

Police Seeking Suspect In Sexual Assault Case

Police Monday were seeking a man who forced two 9-year-old girls to commit fellatio in a cornfield near the East Campus of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The two girls told police they had been playing in the vicinity. They said the man told them,

"Come here, little girls, and you won't get hurt."

Then he grabbed them by their hands and dragged them into the field, the girls said. They said he threatened to hit them if they did not take their clothes off.

Neither of the girls was harmed physically. The man ran and drove away in his car after the incident, according to police reports.

Police are seeking a young, white male with dark blonde shoulder-length hair. He reportedly is about 5 feet, 7 inches tall with a thin build.

The two girls said he wore a western shirt with brown stripes, jeans, brown work boots and a white hood like a pillow case over his head during the incident.

Language Program Gets Foundation OK

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

The Language Enhancement Program for Mexican-American Children (LEMAC) is well on its way towards beginning its second and final experimental year.

The Lincoln Foundation executive and advisory committees agreed Monday to grant 60% of the needed $28,700, providing the program can secure funds for the remaining $11,470.

LEMAC was initiated last fall through joint grants from the Lincoln Foundation and the Woods Charitable Fund.

The program's goal is to improve the educational potential of children from Spanish-speaking homes through language enhancement — and in so doing improve their self-images and cultural identities.

Twenty 3- and 4-year-olds have been used in the pilot program, which also works with families of the Mexican-American youngsters.

The Nebraska Human Resources Research Foundation, LEMAC's sponsor, has been negotiating with the Lincoln Public Schools for adoption of the language enhancement program once the experimental stage has been completed, Dr. Galen Dodge told the Lincoln Foundation committees.

The Lincoln Public Schools is contributing $2,500 to LEMAC's $36,200 budget for the year beginning Aug. 1, and the program is anticipating another $3,500 to $5,000 in Title VII funds through the schools, Marcie Crawford, LEMAC director said.

The Lincoln Foundation also bailed United Cerebral Palsy (UCP) of Southeast Nebraska's Infant Development Center out of financial problems.

The center is the state's only infant stimulation program for the multiply handicapped, said Deanna Coalsen, UCP executive director.

Through the emergency grant, UCP will receive $1,000 a month from July through the end of the year. The program, in which 12 children currently are enrolled, costs an average of $3,882 a month, with the State Welfare Department reimbursing an average of $1,539 a month, leaving the agency with a monthly deficit of $1,343 to be cut from the budget.

A request for $2,500 from the League of Women Voters of Lincoln-Lancaster County for preparation and publication of a revised handbook of city and county government also was approved by the Lincoln Foundation.

The league's last manual used in schools and available to new residents of the community was published seven years ago.

The request was approved providing the league retain proceeds from sale of the booklet for future printings, and that it not be used for commercial purposes.

In other action, the Lincoln Foundation committees denied a request for $2,000 for composition and production of an opera proposed by the Omaha Opera Co. as its Bicentennial project.

Lincoln Area Stargazers May See Apollo Spaceship

Stargazers, train your telescopes, an Apollo spacecraft may be passing over your home.

Weather permitting, about 90% of the world's population will have the chance to glimpse the Apollo spacecraft. It will be visible for brief periods from 65% of the earth's land area, including every state in America except Alaska and Hawaii.

The spacecraft will be over Lincoln Thursday, July 17, at 8:43 p.m., moving northwest to east at 20 degrees for three minutes and eighteen seconds, and Sunday, July 20, at 9:14 p.m. for 35 seconds, moving southwest 10 degrees.

According to Carroll Moore, astronomer at Nebraska Wesleyan University, the spacecraft will appear as a star that moves at a slow, steady speed. It will be more uniformly lighted than satellites, he said, which have a tendency to dim out.

The Apollo ship will be visible on earth because its aluminum coating reflects sun rays. Since the Soviet's Soyuz craft is smaller and does not have the reflective paint, it will not be visible from earth.

But, according to Moore, it will be difficult for Nebraskans to see the spacecraft at all. The best time to sight a spacecraft is from 10 p.m. — about an hour-and-a-half after sunset — to midnight, when the earth's shadow crosses the sun.

Moore said it would probably not be dark enough at 8:45 Thursday night to pick out the spacecraft. People would have a better opportunity catching July 20's 9:14 p.m. crossing, he said.

Girl Hit By Car Injured Slightly

A 4-year-old girl was listed in good condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital Monday after she was struck by a car when she ran across Holdrege St. at David Dr.

Police said Terra L. Fairbanks, of 1641 David Dr., suffered scrapes and bruises when she was struck by a car driven by Margaret Prey, 40, of 6430 Garland.

Prey told police she was unable to avoid the child when she darted into the street from a group of three other children. No tickets were issued.

New Chairs Added To Council Budget

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Councilman Dick Baker called it "pure folly."

Nevertheless, four of his council colleagues saw fit Monday to help out Councilman Steve Cook's back problem. They added $2,275 to the council's budget to buy new chairs for council members.

Cook said the chairs there now are "mighty uncomfortable," which makes sitting in them for long periods of time, as the lawmakers are apt to do, mighty unpleasant.

'Perfectly Good'

Baker said to replace "perfectly good chairs is pure folly," and voted along with Sue Bailey and Bob Sikyta to reject the idea.

When three other members, Cook, Max Denney and Bob Jeambey, tied up the vote, Cook wanted to know where John Robinson disappeared to. If the motion failed, Cook said, he'd buy "my own damn chair."

Robinson later returned, paused before making the momentous decision, and voted to buy some new chairs.

Cook said the old chairs would be given to some other city offices which needs the equipment.

Assistant Rehased

On another budgetary item, the council again rehased the issue of whether to hire a legislative assistant.

For several years council members have debated the merits of hiring their own staff. The lawmakers repeatedly have become bogged down over whether to hire an individual or a consultant to work on specific projects.

A $35,000 item put in the budget was cut back to $30,000 on the recommendation of Jeambey, who argued that the hiring of an aide would imply "we don't trust the administration."

Jeambey said there will be times the council needs to hire help in specific instances, such as when the council hired attorney Jim Bruckner last spring to conduct an investigation in to the Lincoln Police Department's policies on drunk driving.

Sikyta, who has been the main supporter of getting some help, said, "We're kidding ourselves if we say we're making intelligent decisions when the number of committees are increasing and the number of reports departments are putting out are on the rise."

Mrs. Bailey, who has supported the idea, pointed out that one big city council president has said the executive branch of government "tends to keep their council branches barefoot, poor and pregnant."

Jeambey retorted that he may be barefoot and poor, but he knows he's not pregnant.

Cook, who has been the consultant supporter in the continuing debate, suggested that part of the council's problems will be solved by a budget analyst, approved Monday for the Finance Department.

Help With Budget

The budget analyst would help in the preparation of the city budget, which this year exceeds $100 million. The new staffer would be paid $15,600 yearly.

Council members, while generally not favoring the building up a council staff, indicated they will look favorably on Mayor Helen Bosalis's addition of a $20,000 administrative coordinator to her staff. She has one assistant now, who makes $16,000.

Insured Purity Of Water Sought

City officials want to insure that the main source of Lincoln's water doesn't get bottled up or dammed up sometime in the future.

That message will be given to state officials Wednesday at a public hearing in Wahoo on the Platte River Basin Study.

The study of water resources in the Platte River Basin is aimed at preparing a comprehensive plan for water and land resource management throughout the state.

Lincoln officials are concerned because the river, near Ashland, provides much of the city's water.

Public Utilities Director Lee Blocker said he will testify that the city needs a "wet river." That is, he said the city wants water in the river by the time it reaches Ashland.

Secondly, Blocker said the city needs to have a river kept free of debris and silt, which can block the flow of water into the city's Ashland wellfield.

Blocker said he won't comment on specific proposals made in the study since the study doesn't tell "which projects will cause what reactions to the river."

The City Council and mayor are sending Blocker to Wahoo to state the city's position. Several public hearings will be held around the state on the study.

Council Refuses Chairman Change

Councilman Bob Sikyta lost out in his bid to unseat Councilman Max Denney from the chairmanship next May.

Sikyta proposed a change in the council's rules which would require the annual election of chairman of the council, on the grounds that the system "works well with the County Board."

The yearly election of the chairman would spread the responsibility around to other lawmakers.

"It would be a fairer way to handle it," maintained Sikyta, who several months ago led the fight to keep Denney from being elected chairman.

After the spring city elections, the new council elected Denney to a two-year term of office. Councilman Steve Cook also wanted the job, but only received Sikyta's support since other council members previously had committed themselves to naming Denney to that post.

At the time of Denney's election, debate became heated, tempers flared.

On Monday, when Sikyta proposed a change in the rules, other council members indicated they didn't want to go through the wringer again.

Councilwoman Sue Bailey said she might favor the one-year election plan if Sikyta proposed the program be started at the end of Denney's term in 1977.

That way, "we avoid the personal issue," she said.

Cook pointed out that Denney could be re-elected to the chairmanship under

St. Elizabeth Allowed Second Office Building

A second, 18-suite medical office building will be built "sometime in the future" on the grounds at St. Elizabeth Health Center as a result of City Council action Monday.

The lawmakers split 5-2 to grant hospital officials authority to relocate office space for a physicians' office building. Planning Director Doug Brogren already has approved the relocation of the first, 18-suite medical office building, to house 18 physicians.

Council members Sue Bailey and Bob Sikyta opposed the plan. The plan also was opposed by Gateway Professional Associates, a group of private investors who own, view the proposed office building as competition to the Gateway Professional Building.

Bailey Opposed

Mrs. Bailey opposed the application on the grounds that the medical building would generate additional traffic to 70th St. She argued that although 70th already has been widened to four-lanes, allowing such traffic generators to be built would act as a precedent to build similar offices along narrower streets, such as 48th, source of a recent controversy over widening.

Sikyta said he opposed the plan because St. Elizabeth officials have not built their first medical office building. Sikyta apparently felt it was premature to give the approval for the second building.

An attorney for the Gateway investors claimed that the St. Elizabeth office buildings would constitute unfair competition for public businessmen, who must pay taxes on their properties.

Maintenance Of City Property Eyed

City lawmakers said Monday they want to discuss the maintenance of city-owned property, some of which they hear doesn't meet city housing standards.

The council will ask city real estate manager Dennis Fetting to submit a report on the upkeep of city property, particularly on houses, sheds and buildings located in the former Northeast Radial's path.

Finance Director Jim Mallon said the city concentrates on three main things in maintaining city properties — keeping the roofs from leaking, keeping the houses warm and keeping the plumbing in operation.

The council tentatively approved an appropriation of $343,000 for maintaining the Old City Hall, at 10th and O St. The figure includes $14,000 to pay the steam-heat bill this winter.

The Old City Hall is one of several public buildings and a number of downtown businesses which still is connected to the steam lines at the K St. power plant. The electric system wants to shut down that plant by 1977, but in order to continue burning coal a variance permit must be obtained from the State Environmental Control Council.

A hearing July 24 will decide whether the Lincoln Electric System must meet clean air standards, or whether LES can continue burning coal at the plant.

The City Council went on record Monday urging the state to grant the permit for one year so that LES can continue to burn "a minimum amount" of coal. The council took that action on the request of LES Administrator Walt Canney.

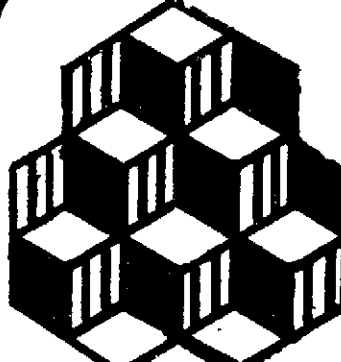

Last fall the council extended the operation of the K St. plant from 1976 to 1977 so that steam could continue to be generated at the plant for another year.

Attorneys Ask Rape Law Applied To Trowbridge

The penalty provisions of a 1975 law which will go into effect Aug. 23 should be applied in the attempted rape conviction of Jack Wayne Trowbridge, a brief filed with the Nebraska Supreme Court Monday said.

He was convicted in Douglas County District Court of assault with intent to rape and received a sentence of two to six years for the July 12, 1974, incident.

The brief was filed by public defender, Frank Morrison and assistant public defender Bennet Hornstein. They argued if a criminal statute is amended by mitigating the punishment after

New Chairs Added To Council Budget

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Councilman Dick Baker called it "pure folly."

Nevertheless, four of his council colleagues saw fit Monday to help out Councilman Steve Cook's back problem. They added $2,275 to the council's budget to buy new chairs for council members.

Cook said the chairs there now are "mighty uncomfortable," which makes sitting in them for long periods of time, as the lawmakers are apt to do, mighty unpleasant.

"Perfectly Good"

Baker said to replace "perfectly good chairs is pure folly," and voted along with Sue Bailey and Bob Sikyta to reject the idea.

When three other members, Cook, Max Denney and Bob Jeambey, tied up the vote, Cook wanted to know where John Robinson disappeared to. If the motion failed, Cook said, he'd buy "my own damn chair."

Robinson later returned, paused before making the momentous decision, and voted to buy some new chairs.

Cook said the old chairs would be given to some other city officials which needs the equipment.

Assistant Reshaped

On another budgetary item, the council again reshaped the issue of whether to hire a legislative assistant.

For several years council members have debated the merits of hiring their own staff. The lawmakers repeatedly have become bogged down over whether to hire an individual or a consultant to work on specific projects.

A $35,000 item put in the budget was cut back to $20,000 on the recommendation of Jeambey, who argued that the hiring of an aide would imply "we don't trust the administration."

Jeambey said there will be times the council needs to hire help in specific instances, such as when the council hired attorney Jim Bruckner last spring to conduct an investigation in the Lincoln Police Department's policies on drunk driving.

Sikyta, who has been the main supporter of getting some help, said, "We're kidding ourselves if we say we're making intelligent decisions when the number of committees are increasing and the number of reports departments are putting out are on the rise."

Mrs. Bailey, who has supported the idea, pointed out that one big city council president has said the executive branch of government "tends to keep their council branches barefoot, poor and pregnant."

That way, "we avoid the personal issue," she said.

Cook pointed out that Denney could be re-elected to the chairmanship under Sikyta's plan.

But, Councilman Bob Jeambey said he couldn't buy the proposal since, "We'd be undoing something we already had done. It would create an embarrassment for our existing chairman by changing the rules after he was elected."

Jeambey argued that there are "open" ways to remove Denney under the rules and suggested a change in the chairman's term was not the way to go.

Denney didn't argue for or against Sikyta's motion, but when the time came for the vote, Denney voted along with Jeambey, Mrs. Bailey, John Robinson and Dick Baker to stick with the two-year term. It was Sikyta and Cook dissenting. Again.

Charles Palleson, attorney for the hospital, said it is the hospital's intent to pay property taxes. If taxes are not levied by the county assessor, then, he said, officials would make a in-lieu-of-tax payment.

Karnopp Named

In other business the council named Lancaster County Sheriff Merle Karnopp as deputy Civil Defense director, a non-salaried job. The County Board also is scheduled to approve that appointment, recommended by the Civil Defense advisory board.

The council also appointed Ruth Egner to the city-county Board of Health for a three-year term and appointed the Rev. Richard Nesmith to chair the Cable Television Advisory Committee.

The council also renewed its agreement with the county providing for a city-county human services administrator.

In further action the council:

By 1980s U.S. Should Be World's Space Transportation Agency

By PAUL RECER
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Russia will likely dominate manned space travel for the next four years while America goes through a spacecraft model change. But by the 1980s, the United States should be the world's common carrier in space.

The Apollo-Soyuz Test Project (ASTP), the joint U.S.-Soviet mission set for launch Tuesday, is expected to be the last voyage of the Apollo spacecraft, the reliable vehicle that ferried men to the moon and back, and America's last manned space flight until at least 1979.

Russia, however, is expected to continue manned flights at the rate of several a year using the Soyuz, a simple earth orbital spacecraft, much smaller and less sophisticated than the Apollo. The Soyuz is the Soviet space workhorse, used to fly two-man crews to Salyut space stations.

American space officials say the Russians are building a massive space complex — three or four times larger than Cape Canaveral, Fla. — in a southern Soviet desert.

Astronaut Thomas P. Stafford, Apollo commander for the ASTP mission and one of the few foreigners to visit the Russian Baikonur Cosmodrome, said the Soviet space complex "makes Cape Canaveral look pretty small."

He said the complex still under construction includes a new city of 50,000 called Leninsk to support the space missions.

"They are not slowing down one bit in their space program,"

The American space agency is concentrating its effort and funds on development of the space shuttle, a reusable spacecraft.

Dr. Christopher C. Kraft, director of the Johnson Space Center near Houston, said the shuttle may turn America into a space transportation agency for the whole world.

Experts believe that once the shuttle is operational, American companies and foreign governments will pay freight charges to deliver payloads into earth orbit. In effect, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) would become the common carrier in space, just as trucks, railroads and ships are common carriers on earth.

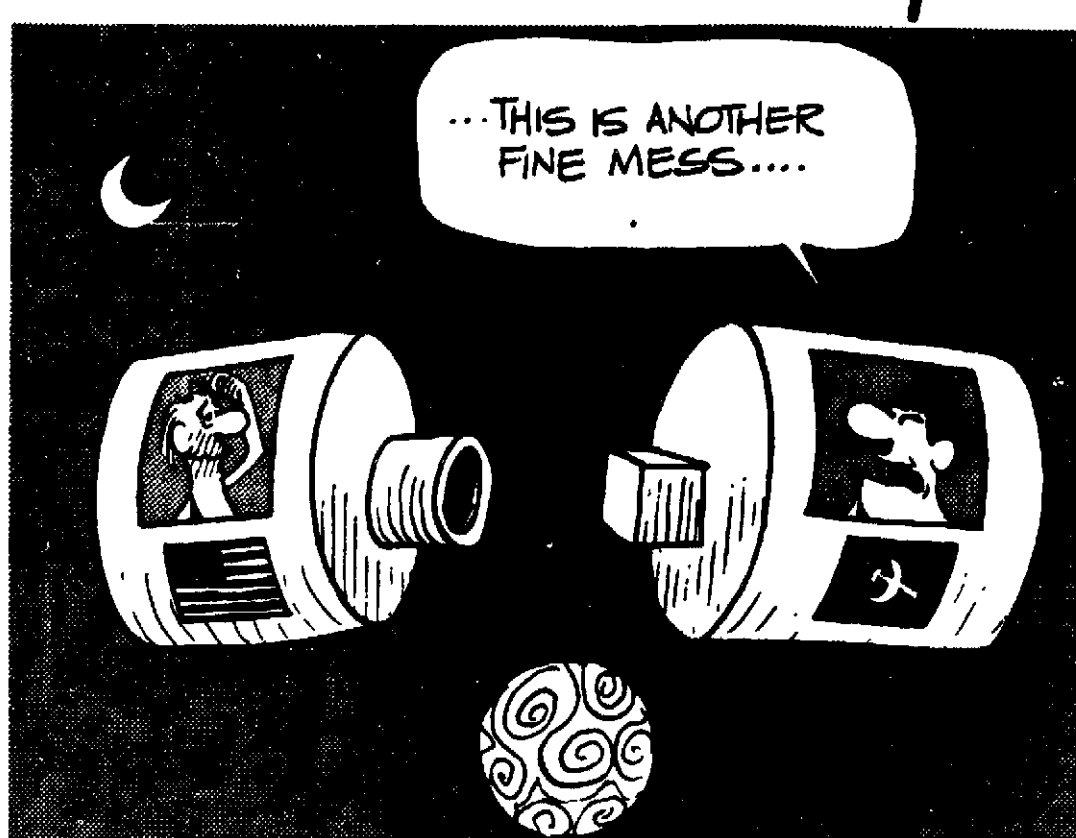

Key to this new era in space is cost.

Currently, the cost of delivering one pound into space is several thousand dollars, largely because spacecraft are used only once and then discarded. This would be similar to junking an airliner after every flight.

With the shuttle, the cost of putting a pound into space can be dropped to a few hundred dollars because the shuttle can be flown, refurbished and flown again, time after time.

The heart of the Shuttle system is the orbiter stage which resembles an airplane about the size of a DC-9 jetliner.

It will be launched into space by two rocket boosters. These rockets, along with the three main engines of the shuttle, will develop more than three million pounds of thrust.

The booster rockets are attached to the outside of the orbiter and will be jettisoned at about 27 miles in altitude. They will parachute into the ocean to be recovered and reused.

An external propellant tank, the largest element of the shuttle system, will feed the orbiter's engines during the launch phase and is the only part of the system that is not reused.

The shuttle will carry a crew of up to 10. The pilot and copilot will do the actual flying, and the rest of the crew will perform the work of the mission. Time in space can range from seven to 30 days.

In its 15- by 60-foot cargo bay, the shuttle will be able to carry satellites or a science station. It will also have a manipulator arm equipped with television for handling the payload.

At the end of its mission, the orbiter will return to earth and land much like a conventional jetliner.

Experts believe a fleet of shuttles may make dozens of flights a year by the mid-1980s and open up new uses for space.

The spacecraft will be able to deliver satellites to orbit and recover them when they are in need of repair. Multimillion-dollar satellites, which become useless under current conditions after some mechanical or electrical failure, could be returned to service at a fraction of their cost.

Manufacturing in space could become a reality with the shuttle, some experts believe, and lead to significant advances in medicine, communications and manufactured materials.

For example, experts believe that electronic crystals manufactured in space at a purity not possible on earth could lead to such things as wrist television sets, hearing aids the size of a pinhead, or cardiac pacemakers the size of a nickel.

The first international payload for the shuttle is already under development. Spacelab is a scientific space station being developed by 10 European nations which will pay NASA to deliver the module into space aboard the shuttle.

Current plans for the shuttle's development call for horizontal flight tests in two years and the first earth orbital flight in 1979. If all goes well, officials expect the shuttle, history's first fully reusable spacecraft, to be operational by 1980.

By PAUL RECER
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Russia will likely dominate manned space travel for the next four years while America goes through a spacecraft model change. But by the 1980s, the United States should be the world's common carrier in space.

The Apollo-Soyuz Test Project (ASTP), the joint U.S.-Soviet mission set for launch Tuesday, is expected to be the last voyage of the Apollo spacecraft, the reliable vehicle that ferried men to the moon and back, and America's last manned space flight until at least 1979.

Russia, however, is expected to continue manned flights at the rate of several a year using the Soyuz, a simple earth orbital spacecraft, much smaller and less sophisticated than the Apollo. The Soyuz is the Soviet space workhorse, used to fly two-man crews to Salyut space stations.

American space officials say the Russians are building a massive space complex — three or four times larger than Cape Canaveral, Fla. — in a southern Soviet desert.

Astronaut Thomas P. Stafford, Apollo commander for the ASTP mission and one of the few foreigners to visit the Russian Baikonur Cosmodrome, said the Soviet space complex "makes Cape Canaveral look pretty small."

He said the complex still under construction includes a new city of 50,000 called Leninsk to support the space missions.

"They are not slowing down one bit in their space program,"

The American space agency is concentrating its effort and funds on development of the space shuttle, a reusable spacecraft.

Dr. Christopher C. Kraft, director of the Johnson Space Center near Houston, said the shuttle may turn America into a space transportation agency for the whole world.

Experts believe that once the shuttle is operational, American companies and foreign governments will pay freight charges to deliver payloads into earth orbit. In effect, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) would become the common carrier in space, just as trucks, railroads and ships are common carriers on earth.

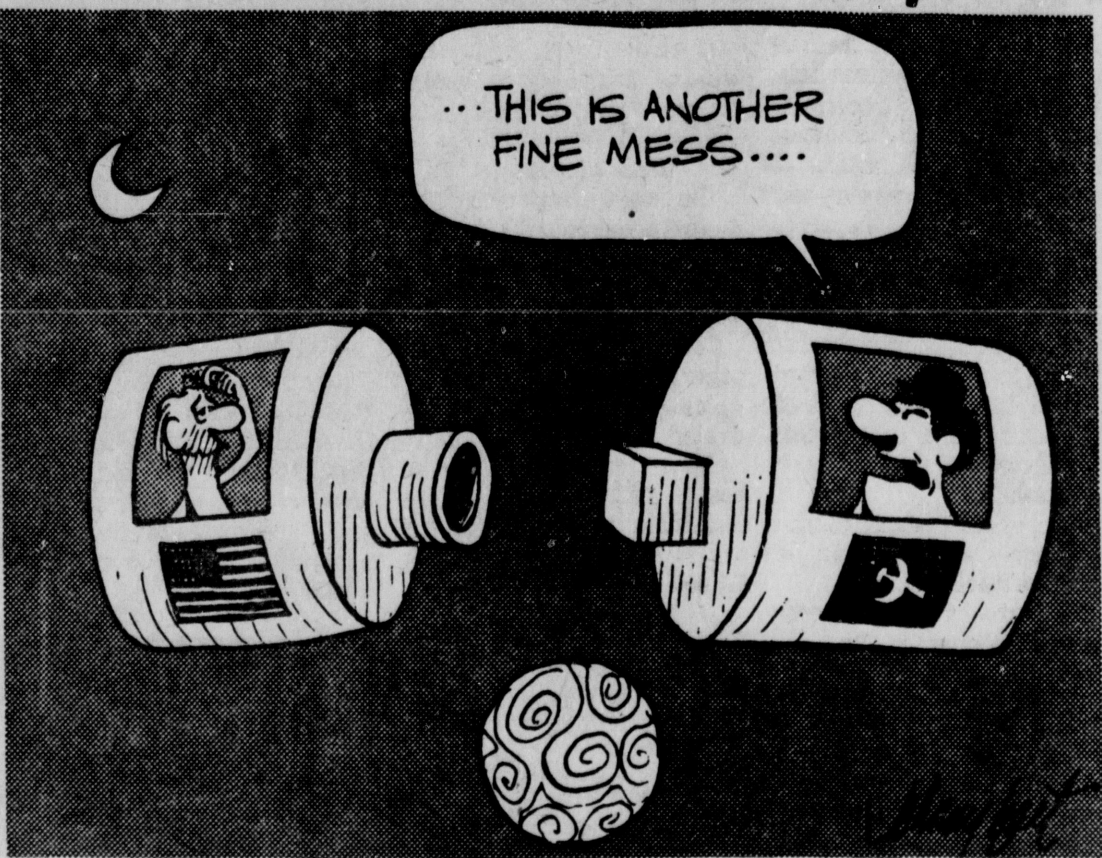

Key to this new era in space is cost.

Currently, the cost of delivering one pound into space is several thousand dollars, largely because spacecraft are used only once and then discarded. This would be similar to junking an airliner after every flight.

With the shuttle, the cost of putting a pound into space can be dropped to a few hundred dollars because the shuttle can be flown, refurbished and flown again, time after time.

The heart of the Shuttle system is the orbiter stage which resembles an airplane about the size of a DC-9 jetliner.

It will be launched into space by two rocket boosters. These rockets, along with the three main engines of the shuttle, will develop more than three million pounds of thrust.

The booster rockets are attached to the outside of the orbiter and will be jettisoned at about 27 miles in altitude. They will parachute into the ocean to be recovered and reused.

An external propellant tank, the largest element of the shuttle system, will feed the orbiters engines during the launch phase and is the only part of the system that is not reused.

The shuttle will carry a crew of up to 10. The pilot and copilot will do the actual flying, and the rest of the crew will perform the

days.

In its 15-by-60-foot cargo bay, the shuttle will be able to carry satellites or a science station. It will also have a manipulator arm equipped with television for handling the payload.

At the end of its mission, the orbiter will return to earth and land much like a conventional jetliner.

Experts believe a fleet of shuttles may make dozens of flights a year by the mid-1980s and open up new uses for space.

The spacecraft will be able to deliver satellites to orbit and recover them when they are in need of repair. Multimillion-dollar satellites, which become useless under current conditions after some mechanical or electrical failure, could be returned to service at a fraction of their cost.

Manufacturing in space could become a reality with the shuttle, some experts believe, and lead to significant advances in medicine, communications and manufactured materials.

For example, experts believe that electronic crystals manufactured in space at a purity not possible on earth could lead to such things as wrist television sets, hearing aids the size of a pinhead, or cardiac pacemakers the size of a nickel.

The first international payload for the shuttle is already under development. Spacelab is a scientific space station being developed by 10 European nations which will pay NASA to deliver the module into space aboard the shuttle.

Current plans for the shuttle's development call for horizontal flight tests in two years and the first earth orbital flight in 1979. If all goes well, officials expect the shuttle, history's first fully reusable spacecraft, to be operational by 1980.

SeTech College May Buy Pershing College Campus

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College Area Board will discuss a proposal to acquire Pershing College and will set the 1975-76 mill levy for operations and construction at a meeting Tuesday.

The board will meet at 1 p.m. in the Lincoln campus Bryan Center, 1701 S. 40th, according to Area President Robert Eicher.

University of Nebraska Foundation President Harry Haynie has privately asked Eicher if the college area would be interested in buying the defunct Pershing campus at Beatrice.

Although Pershing has not formally been listed for sale, Eicher said Haynie mentioned a preliminary $2 million price tag. An appraisal of the 69-acre campus with five buildings hasn't yet been completed.

The foundation acquired Pershing as a gift, and its most widely discussed use was for the University of Nebraska, free of charge. However, some community college board members and other educators had first toyed with — then shelved — the idea of acquiring Pershing or perhaps using it jointly with NU.

NU President D.B. Varner has said he hasn't abandoned the possibility of using Pershing, but that might be two or three years off. Varner continued to favor joint use with the Southeast Community College.

Serving 15 counties, the college has campuses in Fairbury and Milford and leases buildings throughout Lincoln. The board has endorsed building a $6.7 million consolidated Lincoln campus.

Gov. J. James Exon vetoed $449,000 in seed money for Lincoln building, but the 1975 Legislature in LB344 authorized a local area property levy. Up to two mills may be imposed for operations and up to one mill for construction, but the combined total may not exceed 2.5 mills.

Board members last month adopted a $5.5 million budget for 1975-76 which calls for a $281,164 operating deficit, because of late property tax collections. The budget projects a 1.5 mill levy on property.

The board will also be asked to approve staff salaries for the coming school year. Recommendations call for a 10% overall increase.

LB344, which also reorganized the technical community college system and emphasizes local control, requires the southeast board to reorganize on Tuesday; membership will remain the same.

In other business, the board will be requested to approve an audit firm report and personnel proposals, and will discuss the debt-plagued dormitory on the Fairbury campus.

Human Services Unit OKs '76-'77 Budget

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

Members of the Region V Human Services board Monday approved an almost $2.5 million budget for the operation of the Region V Community Mental Health Program during fiscal year 1976-77.

The 16 board members — representing the 16 southeast Nebraska counties in Region V — okayed the following agency budgets to be used for continuation and expansion of mental health programs:

- Blue Valley Mental Health Center — $342,784
- Pioneer Mental Health Center — $359,120
- Lincoln-Lancaster Mental Health Center — $1,113,514

In addition, board members approved a $142,976 expansion budget for the Lincoln-Lancaster County Child Guidance Center; and $434,079 for the operation of five Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs programs.

A $57,842 budget was approved for the operation of the regional office.

Sources Of Funds

Money for the proposed budgets — which will have to be approved by the State Department of Public Institutions and Nebraska Legislature — will come from state, county and federal sources, as well as from agency fees.

Corps To Delay Declaring Platte Navigable Waterway

Washington (AP) — It appears that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will wait awhile before declaring the Platte River a "navigable" waterway, according to Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb.

A controversy over the designation has raged since the corps announced its intentions. Gov. J. James Exon has even threatened to take the corps into court over the issue.

The corps can take over the river by declaring it "navigable," and there are a number of different factors taken into consideration in the declaration.

If a particular river or stream was used for interstate commerce at any time, that river or stream can be declared navigable, according to criteria used by the corps.

Using historical data, which indicates hunters and trappers used the Platte at one time, the corps said it would declare the Platte "navigable."

Now it appears the designation will be delayed while the criteria used in making the designation are re-evaluated, Mrs. Smith said Monday.

"This is a step ahead, and what we had asked for in meetings with Victor Veysey," assistant secretary of the Army in charge of public works.

Mrs. Smith called the decision to re-evaluate the designation criteria a "victory."

The House Public Works Committee will hold hearings on the subject beginning Wednesday.

Preparations For Pageant Begin

Kearney (AP) — Production cast members of the 1975 Miss Nebraska Pageant arrived here Monday to start rehearsals for the three-night event scheduled Thursday through Saturday at Kearney High School.

Twenty-six young women from across the state will be in competition to succeed 1974's Miss Nebraska, Sharon Sue Pelc of Johnstown.

Competition will include judging in swimming suits, evening gown, talent and poise categories.

The 1975 Miss Nebraska will be crowned Saturday night, and will represent the state in the Miss American Pageant in Atlantic City, N.J., later this summer.

It is the sixth straight year Kearney has hosted the pageant.

Mid-State Project Asks Renewal

Grand Island (UPI) — The Nebraska Mid-State Reclamation District board of directors has set Nov. 4 as the election date on a proposal to extend the district's life another 15 years.

President Bob Lowry of Cairo recommended the election in line with a state law which says any project not under construction within 15 years of January 1961, must receive renewed voter approval.

The district was formed in 1948 when it was supported by a 3-1 margin by those balloting. In 1957, the vote margin was 10-1 for the multi-purpose project.

In urging another extension, Lowry said, "If the voters choose to quit now, we would never be in line again. Our intended funds would go elsewhere in the nation and we would sit high and dry, continuing to experience periodic floods without any water recreation in our area." He added the water recreation plan envisioned in connection with the project "would provide an entirely new economy vital to the continuing prosperity of this fertile Platte Valley."

Lowry said more than $3 million has already been invested to provide the studies and plans that were needed to obtain federal funds. "This $3 million will bring us a return of more than $128 million in federal funds, so I would call this an excellent investment."

The board also approved a budget for this fiscal year of $234,000, or $24,000 more than for the previous year.

Don Shriner, Mid-State general manager, said the increase was primarily because of inflationary pressures. He said the levy would be .88 mills, or .18 mills more than for the past year. The district is authorized to levy one mill but the board has been able to keep it consistently at one-half to two-thirds of a mill.

One NRD To Cut Levy

Grand Island (UPI) — During this period of rising mill levies the one for the Central Platte Natural Resources District headquartered here is going down, manager Ron Bishop said Monday.

He said this is true despite a slightly higher budget of $1.7 million this year because some of the added costs will be offset by state funds.

The property tax requirements for operations will be about $2,000 less than for last year.

"We hope to be able to utilize the new Nebraska natural resources development fund," he said. Legislation established the fund about a year ago. During the past 12 months, Bishop said, "We've been waiting for the rules and regulations and the paper work to get out of the way and it appears as though we're about in a position where some of the districts can start using the funds."

Central Platte has made an application for approximately $86,000.

Omaha Building Burns Electricity During Clean-Up

Omaha (AP) — Lights burn bright in the city-county building in Omaha after employees leave and some citizens are wondering why.

The mayor's office said it has received a number of complaints about the lights and some department directors have grumbled about a single light switch controlling all the lights on some floors.

However, a spokesman for a firm that designed the building says its not as bad as all that.

"Generally, there are from two to four switches on a floor," said Jerry Streight, engineer for the Leo A. Daly Co.

The light controls are centralized on each floor for ease of operation, he said.

Streight said the lights are burning at night because employees are cleaning the building.

PSC Authorizes Hike In Phone Rates

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The cost of long distance telephone calls in Nebraska is going up.

The Nebraska Public Service Commission Monday authorized Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co. to raise its long distance rates to the level the commission gave Northwestern Bell Telephone Co.

The commission granted Northwestern Bell a 5-6% increase in long distance rates as part of a tariff schedule which will increase revenue $5.3 million a year. The tariff schedule also calls for a 4-7% hike in residential and business exchange rates served by Northwestern Bell.

The increase in long distance charges given Northwestern Bell and LT&T will affect all Nebraskans regardless of which phone company serves them, because long distance rates are kept uniform across the state.

Bill To Rise

In Omaha, the new tariff schedule means the present residential phone user will see his monthly bill rise from $7.65 to $8.15, while the cost of a business phone will increase from $20.50 to $22 a month.

John Hilsabeck, a Northwestern Bell executive, said the new rates will become effective as soon as computers are reprogrammed and the commission notified. He said it would take several days.

Northwestern Bell had sought a $16 million rate increase, including increasing the cost of a pay phone call from ten to twenty cents.

Commissioners pared the $16 million request down to $5.3 million following extensive hearings and kept the cost of a pay phone call at a dime.

Adjustments Made

Commissioners also made some adjustments to the suggested tariff schedule submitted by Bell.

They decided to shift some of the burden of the increase from toll calls to luxury phone models, including the trim-line and touch-tone phones.

James Munnely, the commissioner from Omaha, said such novelties are not needed by the average ratepayer, and that such features should bear a portion of the increased cost.

Columbus Commissioner from Omaha, said such novelties are not needed by the average ratepayer, and that such features should bear a portion of the increased cost.

Columbus Commissioner Duane Gay noted that the tariff schedule approved by the commission gives people a monetary incentive for off-peak hour long distance calls.

Gay said the schedule gives phone users a 60% discount on long distance calls made on Saturdays and increases the discounts on early and late hour long distance calls from 20-40% to 35-60%.

Other Actions

In other action, the commission on a 3-1 vote approved a South Dakota private utility's plans to construct an electric transmission line from Scottsbluff to South Dakota.

Black Hills Power & Light Co. of Rapid City, S.D., plant to build a 700-volt power line through 94 miles of Scottsbluff, Sioux and Dawes Counties.

The line, which would not directly serve any Nebraska customers, would connect in Scottsbluff with the Bureau of Reclamation's Stegall terminal power line which carries electricity generated in Wyoming.

Commissioner Eric Rasmussen voted against approving the line, because he said there is some question whether a private power company which does not serve Nebraska should be able to condemn land in Nebraska. All electric utilities in Nebraska are publicly-owned.

Rasmussen noted the line will cause considerable damage to farmers in western Nebraska using central pivot irrigation systems and will preclude such systems in the future.

The line was approved by the State Power Review Board. Board secretary Gary Gustafson said there is sufficient evidence that Nebraskans would benefit from the line, particularly in times of emergency.

Kiwanis Award Goes To Frey For Presidency

The executive director of the Lincoln Foundation Monday received a statewide Kiwanis award.

John Frey, last year's president of the Capitol City Kiwanis Chapter, was chosen Distinguished Club President by Kiwanis International in Chicago.

The national Kiwanis organization uses a set of international guidelines based on growth and club membership as partial criteria in naming the recipient of the award, according to John Tomlinson, past Kiwanis lieutenant governor of Nebraska.

Lancaster Manor's Budget Request Up

One of the bigger slices of the county budget pie came under the scrutiny of the Lancaster County commissioners Monday.

And Lancaster Manor officials said their request for next year is up $400,000 from this year. They are requesting $2.6 million, compared with $2.2 million this year.

Lancaster Manor Administrator Jerry Gibson said about $200,000 of the increase will go for increased costs of operating the county-owned nursing home.

The other $200,000, he said, is due to increases in the "power plant" portion of the manor's budget.

That portion includes maintenance and utility expenses for buildings occupied by the Lincoln Action Program, and Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation, Lincoln-Lancaster Child Care Services, Youth Service System group homes, the Lancaster County Juvenile Attention Center and other agencies.

About $100,000 of the increase in operating the manor is in the amount budgeted for food. About $57,000 is for staff and equipment needed for the opening of the south wing in the manor.

This will add about 40 beds to the 243 now available for elderly citizens at the nursing home.

Commissioner Bruce Hamilton thought he spotted a way to reduce the amount requested by reducing the amount budgeted for salaries for the staff members to be added.

He noted that the new wing is not due to be opened until October, and that the new beds will be put into use gradually.

"I'll bet we could save $30,000-$40,000," he said. This brought a raised eyebrow from Gibson and Pat Snyder, administrative service officer, but both agreed the amount would be appreciable.

The amount the manor officials had budgeted for the new staff members was based on annual salaries, not the amount of the year they would draw wages.

"If we don't need it, let's not levy for it," said Gauger.

The commissioners have been receiving requests from department heads for several weeks and hope to finish the list before the week ends.

Throughout, commissioners have assumed a stingy posture, illustrated by the way Gauger opened the session with manor officials.

"Where can we cut, Jerry?" she asked of manor administrator Jerry Gibson.

35% Of State Wheat Crop Said Harvested To Date

Approximately 35% of Nebraska's wheat crop has been harvested, it was reported Monday in the weekly state crop-weather report issued by the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics.

This rate of harvesting compares with a normal of 45% harvested at this time, and a 90% harvest figure reached during last year's drought.

The wheat harvest is expected to move into the Panhandle area this week, the report said.

The wheat crop is 70% ripe, exactly the statistical norm. Last year, the crop was 100% ripe at this time.

Dry weather across the state has pushed both the wheat harvest and irrigation operations, the report said.

Corn is reported in mostly good to excellent condition statewide, and beginning to tasse in several areas. There are some reports of rootworm and corn borer damage, and grasshoppers are said to be in greater numbers than in past years.

Sorghum is reported in mostly good condition, and soybeans are rated from good to excellent.

Alfalfa and wild hay are in mostly good condition, with the second cutting of alfalfa near 45% complete.

Sugarbeets are listed in generally good condition as irrigation brings the crop along. Hail damage was reported in isolated areas.

Dry beans are said a little slow in developing, largely due to insufficient soil moisture.

Dry weather depleted topsoil moisture supplies last week to only 26% adequate. Subsoil moisture supplies also declined and were reported 47% short.

Rainfall throughout Nebraska during the past week included:

Chadron	16	Omaha	26
Grand Island	22	Scottsbluff	29
Imperial	42	Sidney	1.25
North Platte	46	Valentine	.06
North Platte	.82

Omaha Man Dies In Crash On Interstate

Omaha (UPI) — A staff sergeant stationed at Offutt Air Force Base died early Monday shortly after the car he was driving slammed into a bridge abutment on an Omaha highway.

Police said Stephen C. Johnson, 26, was pinned in the wreckage for about 15 minutes, and was pronounced dead on arrival from internal injuries at an Omaha hospital.

Officers said the eastbound car on I-80 had passed the entrance to the Kennedy Freeway, left the road and struck a support pillar of the freeway entrance from I-480 southbound.

Police said Johnson, who was traveling alone at the time of the mishap, had been living in an Omaha apartment and was a Creston, Iowa, native.

Officials Probe Burglary Try At Stella Bank

Stella (AP) — Richardson County authorities, aided by state and federal agents, Monday were investigating an early-morning burglary attempt at the State Bank of Stella.

Mrs. Ed Hall said she got up to take care of her baby son. When she finished, she opened a window and noticed that the bank appeared to be on fire.

She awakened her husband and, while he was getting dressed, she called Andrew McCullen, bank vice president.

Hall ran to the Fire Dept., which is across the street from his mobile home, and got a fire engine.

McCullen and Hall arrived at the bank at about the same time.

The bank was full of smoke. The two men looked into the building to see some cutting torches and other equipment near the safe.

Officials said it appeared nothing was taken in the attempted burglary.

Five BN Cars Derail In Saline

Two grain hopper cars of the eastbound overturned as the train rounded a curve. Two boxcars and the caboose derailed, but remained upright, Saline County authorities said.

Officials said the cause of the mishap is being investigated, and that the track was in good shape.

Some Wilson Workers Back On Job

Omaha (AP) — About one-third of the approximately 900 workers affected by the June 20 closing of the Wilson & Co. meat-packing plant here were back on their jobs Monday. R.S. PSC Authorizes Hike In Phone Rates

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The cost of long distance telephone calls in Nebraska is going up.

The Nebraska Public Service Commission Monday authorized Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co. to raise its long distance rates to the level the commission gave Northwestern Bell Telephone Co.

The commission granted Northwestern Bell a 5-6% increase in long distance rates as part of a tariff schedule which will increase revenue $5.3 million a year. The tariff schedule also calls for a 6-7% hike in residential and business exchange rates served by Northwestern Bell.

The increase in long distance charges given Northwestern Bell and LT&T will affect all Nebraskans regardless of which phone company serves them, because long distance rates are kept uniform across the state.

Bill To Rise

In Omaha, the new tariff schedule means the present residential phone user will see his monthly bill rise from $7.65 to $8.15, while the cost of a business phone will increase from $20.50 to $22 a month.

John Hilsabeck, a Northwestern Bell executive, said the new rates will become effective as soon as computers are reprogrammed and the commission notified. He said it would take several days.

Northwestern Bell had sought a $16 million rate increase, including increasing the cost of a pay phone call from ten to twenty cents.

Commissioners pared the $16 million request down to $5.3 million following extensive hearings and kept the cost of a pay phone call at a dime.

Adjustments Made

Commissioners also made some adjustments to the suggested tariff schedule submitted by Bell.

They decided to shift some of the burden of the increase from toll calls to luxury phone models, including the trim-line and touch-tone phones.

James Munnelly, the commissioner from Omaha, said such novelties are not needed by the average ratepayer, and that such features should bear a portion of the increased cost.

Columbus Commissioner from Omaha, said such novelties are not needed by the average ratepayer, and that such features should bear a portion of the increased cost.

Columbus Commissioner Duane Gay noted that the tariff schedule approved by the commission gives people a monetary incentive for off-peak hour long distance calls.

Gay said the schedule gives phone users a 60% discount on long distance calls made on Saturdays and increases the discounts on early and late hour long distance calls from 20-40% to 35-60%.

In other action, the commission on a 3-1 vote approved a South Dakota private utility's plans to construct an electric transmission line from Scottsbluff to South Dakota.

Youngsters Join 'Super Sleuths'

By GERRY SWITZER
STAR STAFF WRITER

Being a "super sleuth" is the goal of many Lincoln youngsters who are participating in the very popular summer reading program at the Lincoln City Libraries.

As a result of the new and revised summer reading program begun a year ago, children's circulation at the libraries has jumped 8,000, according to Mary Somerville, coordinator for Young People's Services. She said the library staff found that when the emphasis was shifted from the number of books a child read to reading for fun, the interest of the children skyrocketed.

An added attraction as the children place their names in the detective file at the Bennett Martin and branch libraries is the live spiders in the library.

Yes — live spiders which have become an integral part of the "super sleuth" reading program.

The children have brought in spiders, according to Mrs. Somerville, who noted that one contribution included a gigantic specimen named "Hairback" by its contributor.

The only problem with "Hairback" was that she has produced at least 50 babies since she took residence at the library, and some of the babies escaped.

"We're a little concerned we may have gigantic spiders running around one of these days," she said.

But studying the habits of the spiders has been a great pastime for the youngsters as they try to solve the questions of "whodunit" and "how did the robbers make their getaway" and "who solved the crime" in order to qualify as a super sleuth.

Mrs. Somerville said that the

children must answer eight of the questions on the "mystery mobile" to qualify as a super sleuth, or read five books.

Once the mission is accomplished, the detective file folders are stamped, indicating that the reader is a "super sleuth." Then, the individual's case number and fingerprints are added to the files of Super Sleuths displayed in the library.

It's amazing the interest this program creates in reading, she said, noting that the children seem to want to read more and more books even though the number is not the important factor.

She said she has found that the children are reading more substantive books than when they were reading "just to get a certificate," the goal of the previous program.

Reading Power Starts At Home

All the formal reading instruction in the world can't match the power of good books, and the most likely source of that power is the home.

Dr. S. Alan Cohen, lecturer, writer and research in teaching reading, encourages parents to "get some books — if you can't buy them, visit the library and get a book into your child's hands."

"I'm talking about real books, not textbooks or basal readers or school books, but those wonderful, zany, brilliantly illustrated adventures of 'Curious George,' 'The Cat In The Hat' and 'Ten Little Elephants.'"

Read To Them

Dr. Cohen says that if the child is a non-reader, parents should read to him or her.

"Let him follow along by studying the pictures while you read aloud. Be sure you pick a book you both enjoy," he notes.

He contends that most children's books are fun for adults, and parents should have little trouble finding "one that makes you smile."

He suggests having the beginning reader "read along with you."

Stressing that parents not play teacher, Dr. Cohen says that they should not let a child struggle with a word.

"If your child is reading along with you and is uncertain of a word, tell it to her. Don't let her struggle. Make it fun, not work."

"In a car on a family trip, on the beach during a rest period, every night at bed time — Read! Read!" he says.

And the little ones should be allowed to read their favorite books over and over again, according to Dr. Cohen.

'I Can Read' Series

If the child is between four and eight years old, Dr. Cohen suggests that parents ask the librarian or bookstore to show the child any of the "I Can Read" series from Harper and Row, or "Beginner Books" from Random House.

He also suggests books by Dr. Seuss, Crosey Bonsall, H. R. Rey, P.D. Eastman, Robert Leydenfrost, Robert Scarry, Maurice Sendak and Ray McKie. "Little kids love the 'Berens-tain Bears' by Stan and Jan Berenstain, a whole series of humorous books about a bear family," he said.

Older children from nine to 12 love science and biographies. Dr. Cohen suggests trying "Step Up" books for eight and nine-year-olds, and Dell's "Yearling" series — the "finest children's literature" in paperback "pocketbooks" for the 10 to 12-year-old set.

Listed below are Dr. Cohen's favorite children's books:

"Where The Wild Things Are" by Maurice Sendak
"There's A Nightmare In My Closet" (Dial)
"Go Dog Go" by P. D. Eastman
"Green Eggs and Ham" by Dr. Seuss

Hello, Mrs. Jones, I've just called to say

The comment that just about drove me berserk

Was, "I'm sure you'll have time because you don't work."

DEAR HAPPY: I think the poem is great. And for the record, before I became "Dear Abby" (at age 37) I, too, was a cub scout den mother, and I also baked my share of pies for the PTA.

DEAR ABBY: I'm another one who hates to have people come to my home for dinner and just sit there, picking at the food, and telling me they are on a diet and can't eat this and can't eat that!

After I have gone to the trouble of making a nice dinner, I get very annoyed when a dinner guest hardly eats enough to feed a bird.

If I were on a diet, I would tell the hostess not to count on me for dinner, but I'd come afterward.

ELLA

DEAR ELLA: A thoughtful hostess includes some low-cal food for the calorie counters. And the ideal hostess pretends never to notice what her guests eat — or don't eat.

DEAR ABBY: I am 26-year-old, married for seven years, and have worked every day since I was 17. My husband has wandered from job to job and has had periods of unemployment up to nine months. On one occasion I have even had to work two jobs. Fortunately, I was smart enough not to have any children. My husband is presently unemployed (always, conveniently, in warm weather) and spends most of his time riding around on his $4,000 motorcycle.

Nothing irks me more than to come home from working all day and have to clean, cook, do laundry, etc. In seven years of marriage, I have never come home to a meal on the table. My arm was in a sling for a week, and I had to wash dishes one-handed. On the day I came home from the hospital after surgery, I spent the afternoon cleaning because I couldn't stand the mess. If I ask for help, he says I am "nagging" and that "no other guys helps his wife with the housework; that is strictly a woman's job."

I think marriage should be 50-50. If, after men left their mothers' bosoms, they made marriage a 50-50 deal, the divorce rate in this country wouldn't be so high.

FED-UP BUT STILL PLUGGING

DEAR FED: You don't tell me what your problem is, but you have given ME one. What are you still "plugging" for? I must have missed something.

DEAR ABBY: To "USED IN CHICAGO" who objected being a "customer" for their friend's credit-card convenience: We also found that we were being used in the same way, but we found a solution.

One evening, we went out with this friend who always put everything on his company credit card. There was quite a tab. Cocktails, dinner, after-dinner drinks and entertainment. When the waitress presented the check, "George" (not his real name) pulled out his credit card as usual, intending to charge it all to his company and collect the cash from the others.

My husband insisted that we let his share be part of George's company credit-card charge.

George became angry, but he had to back down because all the men in the party sided with my husband. Believe it or not, that was several years ago, and not one attending that party has ever been asked to go out with George again.

Wife Will Serve Jail Term First

San Diego, Calif. (UPI) — Herbert and Mary Walters decided after conferring for six hours that she should serve her six months in jail first and he would go to jail afterwards.

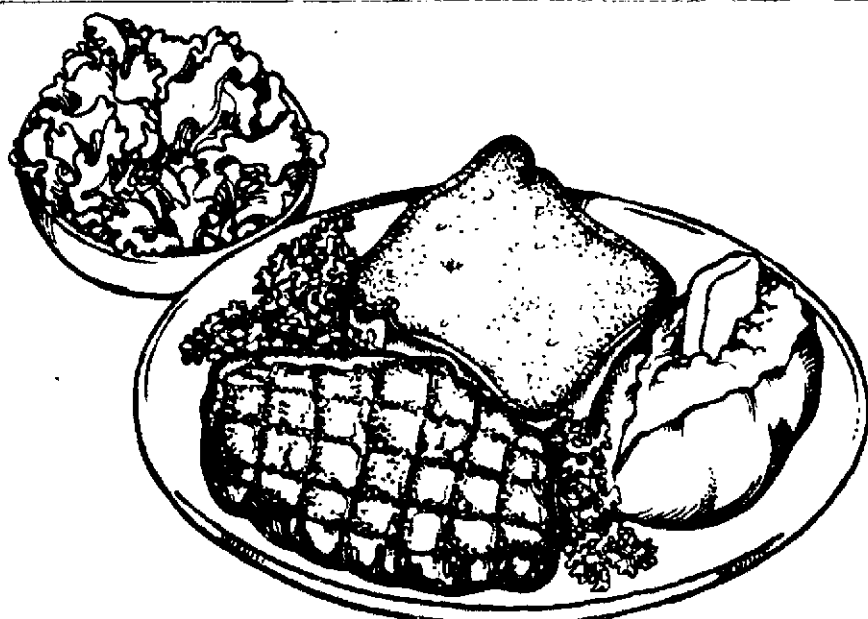

Federal Judge Howard B. Turrentine gave each six months prison sentences after Walters pleaded guilty to aiding in the preparation of a false 1971 income tax return and Mrs. Walters to a charge of knowingly signing a false return.

The judge told the couple he would allow one to serve the term first, followed by the other. His purpose was to permit one parent to care for their 16-year-old son and to manage a family business.

Ladies and gentlemen of the jury: The facts in this case are fairly simple. The defendant, South, got to three notrump and West led a diamond.

Declarer won in dummy and led the jack of hearts, East going up with the ace and returning the ten of diamonds. The defendant won with the king and returned the king of spades, taken by West with the ace.

West played a third round of diamonds, whereupon South won with the ace, played a low spade to the ten and returned a low heart from dummy. When East followed low, the defendant, after great thought, finessed the eight, losing to the queen, and West cashed three diamonds to put the contract down two. Had South gone up with the king, he would have caught West's queen and made four notrump.

The plaintiff, North, contends that South misplayed the hand. "Sheer butchery," he called it. He argues that South should have known at the crucial point that West had the queen of hearts. He maintains that East would not have passed one diamond had he held the A-Q-x of hearts. The plaintiff further contends there was no good reason for the defendant to assume that West had opened the bidding on 10 high-card points, which is all he would have had without the queen of hearts.

The defendant, South, argues that since West had shown up with six diamonds and East with only three, there was a much greater chance of East's having more heart length than West.

So there you have it, ladies and gentlemen of the jury. How say you: Is the defendant guilty as charged, or is the defendant innocent of the charge?

THE JURY: Guilty as charged.

Youngsters Join 'Super Sleuths'

By GERRY SWITZER
STAR STAFF WRITER

Being a "super sleuth" is the goal of many Lincoln youngsters who are participating in the very popular summer reading program at the Lincoln City Libraries.

As a result of the new and revised summer reading program begun a year ago, children's circulation at the libraries has jumped 8,000, according to Mary Somerville, coordinator for Young People's Services.

She said the library staff found that when the emphasis was shifted from the number of books a child read to reading for fun, the interest of the children skyrocketed.

An added attraction as the children place their names in the detective file at the Bennett Martin and branch libraries is the live spiders in the library.

Yes — live spiders which have become an integral part of the "super sleuth" reading program.

The children have brought in spiders, according to Mrs. Somerville, who noted that one contribution included a gigantic specimen named "Hairback" by its contributor.

The only problem with "Hairback" was that she has produced at least 50 babies since she took residence at the library, and some of the babies escaped.

Booklet Helps To Organize Family Records

By JOANNE FARRIS
Recent columns have dealt with personal safety in the homes and with protection of possessions from theft by burglars. Today I want to treat another kind of protection, one which we often overlook until it is too late. This is the care of important personal records.

Who keeps the records in your family? Who, besides the record-keeper, knows where necessary items and information are stored? Do you have one single place where a person could find essential data about your holdings and their whereabouts? Where is your will and who besides you knows its location? All the above are valid questions for each of us to ask ourselves, for some day accident, illness, or death is going to bring home to us the importance of knowing the answers to these questions on behalf of someone we love.

Action For Independent Maturity, a division of the American Association of Retired Persons, has put out a booklet entitled "What Every Family Should Know."

It is well-designed to help a person to organize important records and documents. Space is provided for the listing and location of family records; the names and addresses of family advisers; financial assets and liabilities; kinds of insurance policies; and details about them; the location of wills; and a section for up-to-date figures on retirement income.

The eight-page booklet is available free of charge from

AIM, P.O. Box 2400, Long Beach, Calif. 90801. It is an excellent guide to assist anyone who wants to get records into good order. Simply going through it and filling in the blanks provided will force you to think in a systematic way about the various kinds of records you do have.

Certain items really belong in a safe deposit box. These include documents and valuables which cannot be replaced or can be replaced only with great difficulty and expense.

Examples are: marriage certificates, divorce or other legal papers regarding dissolution of marriage, adoption papers, citizenship records, service papers, certificates of deposit, stock certificates and bonds, original birth certificates and family death certificates. (These last two can be replaced for a small charge, but it often takes weeks to do so, just when the documents are needed in a hurry.)

Other records like income tax returns, education documents, bank books, Social Security cards, guarantees, old love letters, copies of your will (the original is usually kept in the office safe of the attorney who prepared it), automobile titles, etc., can be kept at home.

Personally, I like to keep most of these papers in a metal strong box near my desk. That way they are at hand when I want to refer to them, and in case of fire they will not be consumed.

Toronto — "Did I get sun-tanned?" she said anxiously. I said: "Nobody could see you on a dark night." At 13 years we worry about things like that.

We flew out of Nova Scotia into a sun that continued to set until we gained an hour of time. When we landed in Toronto at 8.30, the sun was still high. The temperature was close to 90 degrees.

At the airport Hilton, both moppets hurried down to the swimming pool to get the last golden moments.

The girl came back in 15 minutes.

She said: "The lifeguard wants me to take a ride in his car. He'll show me the town."

I said: "Who is this cradle robber?"

She said: "Well, he's older."

I said: "How old, pray tell?" (Probably married too, I thought.)

She said: "He's 16."

Tempus fugit. One year they are chewing lollipops. The next they're doing yo-yo acts with teen-age lifeguards. Romance blooms in a breathless quarter of an hour.

I said: "Why grab the first one who comes along?" I said: "Look, we'll be back again in Canada. Why don't you set up a pen pal relationship? Let it build for awhile."

I said: "What kind of car has he got?"

She said: "He's got three cars!"

Toronto is the hub of Canada's air transport. Air Canada's L-1011 with the red maple leaf on the tail. It's a wide plane carrying 253 people on three Rolls Royce jet engines.

CP Air's 707s coming from Montreal Bound for Vancouver. To Tokyo by way of Anchorage and down the South China sea to Hong Kong.

On the runway, an Air Jamaica plane, painted in sunshine orange and yellow, waited for tower clearance. Headed for the rum-and-sugar islands.

The airport Hilton lobby was full of stewardesses checking in, checking out. They chatted in Swedish. Switched to English for the desk clerk. Turned to French for the captain from Quebec.

The international airport at Toronto is enormous and efficient. For the Los Angeles flight, you check in at the ticket counter.

Your baggage goes to a U.S. Customs moving belt where you state the things you bought. The baggage goes to the plane. You go through a Canadian-based U.S. Immigration office.

"All American citizens? OK."

You walk a few yards to security inspection (Canadian) and walk through the judas electronic gate. I seem to have just enough metal to make it scream like an eagle.

Security men looked nervous and a uniformed girl ran over me with a hand-held tuning fork.

(Turned out it was my belt buckle that squealed on me.)

In the departure waiting room, I said: "Did you make arrangements to write to that lifeguard Lothario? Did you get his address?"

She said: "He didn't have anything to write on. So he gave me this."

She showed me a card. It was the young man's driver's license.

She put her hands on the floor and tried to stand on her head. She fell over and looked up at me like a puppy. Some girl.

Life Begins At Forty:

By JOANNE FARRIS
Recent columns have dealt with personal safety in the homes and with protection of possessions from theft by burglars. Today I want to treat another kind of protection, one which we often overlook until it is too late. This is the care of important personal records.

Who keeps the records in your family? Who, besides the record-keeper, knows where necessary items and information are stored? Do you have one single place where a person could find essential data about your holdings and their whereabouts? Where is your will and who besides you knows its location?

All the above are valid questions for each of us to ask ourselves, for some day accident, illness, or death is going to bring home to us the importance of knowing the answers to these questions on behalf of someone we love.

Action For Independent Maturity, a division of the American Association of Retired Persons, has put out a booklet entitled "What Every Family Should Know."

It is well-designed to help a person to organize important records and documents. Space is provided for the listing and location of family records; the names and addresses of family advisers; financial assets and liabilities; kinds of insurance policies and details about them; the location of wills; and a section for up-to-date figures on retirement income.

The eight-page booklet is available free of charge from

AIM, P.O. Box 2400, Long Beach, Calif. 90801. It is an excellent guide to assist anyone who wants to get records into good order. Simply going through it and filling in the blanks provided will force you to think in a systematic way about the various kinds of records you do have.

Certain items really belong in a safe deposit box. These include documents and valuables which cannot be replaced or can be replaced only with great difficulty and expense.

Examples are: marriage certificates, divorce or other legal papers regarding dissolution of marriage, adoption papers, citizenship records, service papers, certificates of deposit, stock certificates and bonds, original birth certificates and family death certificates. (These last two can be replaced for a small charge, but it often takes weeks to do so, just when the documents are needed in a hurry.)

Other records like income tax returns, education documents, bank books, Social Security cards, guarantees, old love letters, copies of your will (the original is usually kept in the office safe of the attorney who prepared it), automobile titles, etc., can be kept at home.

Personally, I like to keep most of these papers in a metal strong box near my desk. That way they are at hand when I want to refer to them, and in case of fire they will not be consumed.

Ziebarth Challenge Dismissed

Washington (AP) — The U.S. House Administration Subcommittee on Elections Wednesday dismissed a challenge to the outcome of Nebraska's 3rd District congressional election.

The committee voted 7-1 to turn down the challenge filed by Democrat Wayne Ziebarth of Wilcox.

Rep. John Burton, D-Calif., was the only dissenter. Burton said he did not vote on the merits of the challenge, but dissented because he believed the matter needed further consideration. Burton said Congress should consider establishing provisions for recounts where the vote totals are within a certain percentage.

Ducal Palace Open To Public

Thetford, England (UPI) — Euston Hall, 18th century home of the 11th Duke of Grafton, has been opened to the public for the first time this summer.

The hall, set in fine grounds near Thetford, 80 miles northeast of London, contains a collection of 17th century paintings, including numerous portraits by Van Dyck and Sir Peter Lely. The first duke of Grafton was the son of King Charles II and the duchess of Cleveland and the paintings include several royal portraits.

Euston Hall is open to the public on Thursday afternoons until Sept. 25 and all through August it will also be open on Friday afternoons.

Democrat-controlled subcommittee said it felt that House precedent would not allow the ordering of a recount.

Committee members said previous recounts were ordered only if there was some evidence that the administration of the election, or actual vote count was improper, and that in the case of the Ziebarth challenge, the only reason given for the recount request was that the election was close.

Mrs. Smith's administrative assistant Joseph McCaulay said the subcommittee was not scheduled to take up the challenge Wednesday, and that he did not know how or why the issue was brought up for a decision.

It was a "pleasant surprise," McCaulay said.

Mrs. Smith was on the House floor at the time of the decision, and was informed of the outcome by Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Nebr.

Smith "Gratified" Mrs. Smith said she was "gratified" by the decision, and added that she was confident all along that there was not enough to the voting irregularity allegations to justify a recount.

She also took the opportunity to say she fully intends to seek re-election next year.

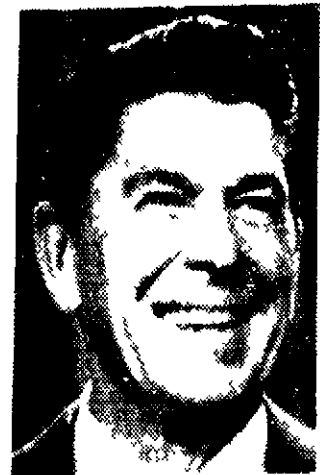

A disappointed Ziebarth said he thinks the issue is now a "closed subject," and that he has no further plans to pursue the challenge.

"Even the recount would have been very precarious as far as winning," Ziebarth said.

The former state senator said he really felt the committee would rule in his favor, but added that if the recount upheld the original outcome, he would not be in a position to run again.

However, his comment could not be taken as an indication that he was planning another campaign next year.

"It's almost fruitless because we had an almost ideal situation — with a weak candidate (Mrs. Smith) and a Democratic year, and we still couldn't do it, so we better get somebody else," said Ziebarth.

REAGAN... expected to declare candidacy.

Cook Predicts Reagan Win In State Primary Election

By The Associated Press
Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan will declare his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination, and he will win Nebraska's presidential primary next year, according to George Cook, a member of the national "Citizens for Reagan Committee."

Cook said formation of the campaign and fund raising committee was approved directly by Reagan. He said one of its purposes was to signal that the official Reagan candidacy is merely a matter of time.

"Governor Reagan always has been popular in Nebraska," Cook said. "He has visited the state at least once a year for the last five or six years."

"I think Governor Reagan will carry Nebraska," Cook said.

"The reaction from the regular party members is that they are anxious to get on the bandwagon," said Cook, who was active in the 1968 and 1972 campaigns of former President Richard Nixon.

Cook is chairman of the Bankers Life Insurance Co. of Nebraska and one of six members of the national Reagan committee.

"I think President Ford has done a good job but I think Reagan would do a better job."

"Reagan is a very sound thinker and doer, the thing I like about him is that he is a doer," Cook said.

As a governor, Cook said Reagan proved his leadership ability and unlike Ford, showed less willingness to compromise. If Reagan does not win the nomination, Cook said he would support Ford "100%."

Jehovah Witnesses

Gather For Meeting

Kansas City (AP) — About 13,000 delegates from Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska are expected here Thursday for the opening day of a Jehovah's Witnesses district assembly. The assembly continues through Sunday.

Since Ford was appointed rather than elected to the Presidency, the country should be given a choice, Cook said.

He said Reagan's candidacy would strengthen, rather than divide, the GOP. Cook discounted any chance that the campaign might splinter the party and result in moving conservative Republicans into a George Wallace camp if the Alabama governor runs a third-party candidacy.

Coffee Exporters Agree To Set Price Guidelines

London (UPI) — Coffee-exporting countries and their major customers agreed to a "revolutionary" new treaty to regulate the coffee trade. The 62-nation International Coffee Council ended three weeks of talks and officials said the broad outlines of a new agreement had been reached. The council, however, scheduled another three-week session beginning Oct. 27 to fill in the final details of the pact.

Motorcyclist Hurt In Crash

Patrick D. Cash, 22, of 830 Rutland, suffered a fractured knee and a broken jaw and cheek bone when the motorcycle he was driving collided with an auto at 17th and R.

The car, driven by Jeanette A. Hansen, 51, of South Sioux City, Iowa, was eastbound on R, turning left onto 17th. Cash, westbound on R, collided with the auto when it moved into his lane.

Cash, a student at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, was listed in critical condition at Lincoln General Hospital.

for an upper ceiling on the price of coffee. The ceiling was set "30% above the average price registered in the first three of the previous six calendar months."

If prices rose and stayed above that level, quotas and market control mechanisms would be automatically removed. But specific price ranges were left out of the body of any agreement.

The conference members also agreed to "variable" quotas for exporting nations, with amounts of coffee producing countries are allowed to export split between fixed and variable percentages.

In the first year of the new agreement, 80% of their exports would be fixed according to agreed new "basic" quotas. The other 20% would vary according to stocks each producing country holds.

"This is a revolutionary concept," said Richard O'Falla, Caceres of El Salvador, chairman of the organization's executive board. Though it creates "a conceptual problem" for smaller coffee-growing countries, he said, it is "a gigantic step forward."

Coffee Exporters Agree To Set Price Guidelines

London (UPI) — Coffee-exporting countries and their major customers agreed to a "revolutionary" new treaty to regulate the coffee trade.

The 62-nation International Coffee Council ended three weeks of talks and officials said the broad outlines of a new agreement had been reached. The council, however, scheduled another three-week session beginning Oct. 27 to fill in the final details of the pact.

The consuming nations, led by the United States, won approval for an upper ceiling on the price of coffee.

The ceiling was set "30% above the average price registered in the first three of the previous six calendar months."

If prices rose and stayed above that level, quotas and market control mechanisms would be automatically removed. But specific price ranges were left out of the body of any agreement.

The conference members also agreed to "variable" quotas for exporting nations, with amounts of coffee producing countries are allowed to export split between fixed and variable percentages.

In the first year of the new agreement, 80% of their exports would be fixed according to agreed new "basic" quotas. The other 20% would vary according to stocks each producing country holds.

Motorcyclist Hurt In Crash

Patrick D. Cash, 22, of 830 Rutland, suffered a fractured knee and a broken jaw and cheek bone when the motorcycle he was driving collided with an auto at 17th and R.

The car, driven by Jeanette A. Hansen, 51, of South Sioux City, Iowa, was eastbound on R, turning left onto 17th. Cash, westbound on R, collided with the auto when it moved into his lane.

Cash, a student at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, was listed in critical condition at Lincoln General Hospital.

Assessor States Property Value At Council Bluffs

Council Bluffs, Iowa (AP) — Property in Council Bluffs and Pottawattamie County is valued for tax purposes at almost $641 million, Assessor Robert Hastings said.

He said the figure does not include numerous churches, hospitals, lodges and charitable organizations, whose property is valued at about $48.5 million, but is tax exempt.

Among the individual properties, the one carrying the top value is the Western Electric plant near Underwood. It was valued for tax purposes at more than $7 million.

Hastings' new 1975 figures are the ones on which this year's taxes will be paid next year.

Missouri River To Rise As Control Waters Flow

Omaha (UPI) — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said Monday the releases from the Gavins Point reservoir this week will result in one to two foot rises in the Missouri River downstream from the dam.

Beginning Wednesday, the corps said the releases will be increased from the present 48,000 cubic feet per second level to about 56,000 cubic feet per second on Friday.

Similar increases, the corps said, were being made from the Fort Randall reservoir.

Spring and early summer flows into the Missouri river, the corps said, would have been more than double the releases now planned without the flood control afforded by the main stem and tributary reservoirs. River stages would have been as much as 10 feet higher throughout much of the period.

The corps said the current outlook is that the rate of release outflows by the end of the week, or higher flows, must be maintained until November to fully evacuate the flood control storage zone to enable the reservoirs to store next year's flood waters.

Boat Owners Bypass Education In Safety

New York (UPI) — Most Americans who go down to the water in boats go without any safety education, a study developed for the Coast Guard shows.

More than 6.5 million families own boats, but of the primary boat operators in these families only 25.7% have taken any boating safety course.

No Charges Expected In Death Of Snow In Two-Car Accident

No charges are expected because of a traffic accident early Sunday morning which left one of the drivers dead, according to the Lancaster County attorney's office.

The victim, Randy Snow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Snow, 1003 S. 34th, was westbound on A St. when his car was in collision with a car being driven north on 84th by Harry F. Large.

Large, 37, of Rt. 3, Lincoln, was listed in fair condition Monday in the intensive care unit of Bryan Memorial Hospital Monday. He had been listed in serious condition.

Anthony Snow, 14, brother of the victim, and Brian Paul, 16, of 4628 Cooper, were listed in fair condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital and St. Elizabeth Community Health Center.

The county attorney's office also said Monday no charges will be filed in the death of 7-year-old David Ketterer, of 2810 S. 40th, who was struck by a car on 48th between Normal Blvd. and Antelope Creek Rd.

The office is waiting for an autopsy report on the death of Virgil L. MacNeil, 81, of 1516 N.

27th, before deciding whether to file charges in that accident.

MacNeil died Sunday of injuries he received when he was struck by a car near 27th and Clinton Friday.

Overland Bank Embezzler Gets Probation, Jail

Robert Charles Lunn has been sentenced to three years probation for embezzling about $300 from the Overland National Bank.

Lunn, of Grand Island, had been charged in a five count indictment. Four of the charges were dropped after Lunn pleaded guilty to one of the counts in U.S. District Court.

One of the terms of probation is that Lunn must spend 15 days in jail under a schedule to be drawn up by the U.S. Marshal.

NU Staffers, Pilot Make Safe Landing

Two University of Nebraska-Lincoln faculty members and their pilot escaped serious injury when their light plane landed Monday morning in a freshly-cut alfalfa field.

The plane, owned by the State Department of Aeronautics, threw a piston rod through the crankcase of the engine five minutes after taking off from Lincoln Municipal Airport.

The plane was being flown by William Lyons of the Department of Aeronautics. The passengers were LaVerne Stetson, an instructor of agricultural engineering, and John Addink, an associate professor of agricultural engineering.

The two men were meeting a representative of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association at Big Bend, Kan., to visit project sites in the state.

An hour and a half after the forced landing on the Allen Snell Jr., farm five miles south of Lincoln the two men were airborne again on their way to Kansas, in another Department of Aeronautics plane.

Missouri River To Rise As Control Waters Flow

Omaha (UPI) — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said Monday the releases from the Gavins Point reservoir this week will result in one to two foot rises in the Missouri River downstream from the dam.

Beginning Wednesday, the corps said the releases will be increased from the present 48,000 cubic feet per second level to about 56,000 cubic feet per second on Friday.

Similar increases, the corps said, were being made from the Fort Randall reservoir.

Spring and early summer flows into the Missouri river, the corps said, would have been more than double the releases now planned without the flood control afforded by the main stem and tributary reservoirs.

River stages would have been as much as 10 feet higher throughout much of the period.

The corps said the current outlook is that the rate of release outflows by the end of the week, or higher flows, must be maintained until November to fully evacuate the flood control storage zone to enable the reservoirs to store next year's flood waters.

Boat Owners Bypass Education In Safety

New York (UPI) — Most Americans who go down to the water in boats go without any safety education, a study developed for the Coast Guard shows.

More than 6.5 million families own boats, but of the primary boat operators in these families only 25.7% have taken any boating safety course.

300 Employees Of Omaha Firm Return To Work

Omaha (UPI) — An estimated one-third of the 900 workers affected by the closing of Omaha's Wilson & Co. plant last month returned to work Monday, but Wilson officials said it was uncertain when the facility would regain full operational status.

General Manager R. S. Wheeler said some 300 workers were brought back Monday, and more would be returned each day as production increases.

Wheeler said just how soon all the employees would return depends upon the sales demand for Wilson products at grocery stores.

Wilson closed the plant June 20, citing economic reasons. The Omaha plant was the only one of the more than 20 Wilson plants nationwide affected.

The Omaha plant employs about 1,100 persons, and those laid off either took paid vacations or unpaid leaves of absences.

Writer Thinks It's Time To Cancel All-Star Game

By BILL GLEASON
(c) Chicago Sun-Times

I think it is time to cancel the All-Star baseball game. I come to that conclusion because it is obvious that the players do not want the All-Star game. (I don't mean this player or that player but The Players.)

It has been said that when the participants in a project or a promotion are unable to understand the purpose of what they are doing, that project or promotion has lost all meaning.

That is precisely what has happened with the All-Star game. Most contemporary players seem to believe that the All-Star game is staged for these two purposes:

- 1 — To provide revenues for the players' pension fund.
- 2 — To give players, managers, coaches a three-day holiday in the middle of the season.

Honestly, sports fans, I get mighty weary of listening to athletes talk about "The All-Star break, as though it were something negotiated for them when Samuel Gompers was in rompers. I get even more tired of hearing players say, "I'd rather take the three days off and go home than be in the All-Star game."

For the benefit of those players who keep wondering "why are we doing this?" I offer a brief refresher course.

The original purpose of the All-Star game was to bring together the finest players in the two leagues and have them play a game.

Players are always saying, "The game doesn't prove which league is the best." I've noticed that the players from the losing league are the ones who give us that routine most often.

The fact is that the outcome of the All-Star game does convince the fans that one league is superior to another.

The Oakland A's have won three successive World Series, but the domination by Finley's big green men hasn't persuaded very many fans that the balance of power has swung to the American League. The National continues to be the league" because its Stars win the mid-summer game so frequently.

And the National wins for a reason that the fans has no difficulty in perceiving. The National wins because it has more outstanding players than the American does.

I am contemptuous of those players and managers who, give a chance to do something for their profession, solemnly declare, "I'd rather spend the All-Star break with my family."

In the first place, most of those guys are with their families during half the season unless they are too cheap to bring the wife and kids to the city of the home team. In the second place, a three-day rest stop in the schedule doesn't provide sufficient time for a player to go back home for a visit with dear old mom.

For those players who are lost in the mists of time, I explain that the "All-Star break" means just that. Back in 1933, when the game began, almost no professional baseball players traveled by airplane. They had to be given time to journey by train to where the All-Star game was to be played.

A second and equally important reason for the "break" was to provide rest for the arms of those pitchers chosen to work a few innings in the All-Star game.

Entirely too many modern pitchers develop tired arms the week before they are to appear in the All-Star game. A National League player who shall be nameless because he is not alone in his unprofessionalism declined to participate in the Tuesday game. His reason? "Personal commitments to fulfill." This fellow has been selected for four All-Star games now, has shown up once.

I have a suggestion for the commissioner's office and for the players' union. Any player chosen for an All-Star team, by vote or selection, must appear in uniform on the day of the game OR be suspended from league play for two weeks and fined $1,000.

That would be a real All-Star break. If The Players do not care to take the game as seriously as the fans do, the All-Star game should be canceled.

Two lefthanders, the Oakland A's Vida Blue, left and the Pittsburgh Pirates' Jerry Reuss, were named starters Monday for Tuesday night's All-Star game in Milwaukee.

Blue, Reuss Named All-Stars' Starters

THE LINCOLN STAR

Sports

Tuesday, July 15, 1975 17

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The American League, hoping to parlay a combination of well-rested pitchers, a rejuvenated Rod Carew and five world champion Oakland starters into its first All Star victory in four years, sends southpaw Vida Blue against the National League and lefthander Jerry Reuss Tuesday night in baseball's 46th mid-summer showcase of talent.

After a directive by league president Lee MacPhail that the clubs rest their ace pitchers Sunday prior to the All Star game, the Americans suddenly find themselves with the luxury of having Oakland's Blue, Kansas City's Steve Busby, New York's Catfish Hunter, etc., rested and ready while National League aces like Tom Seaver of the Mets and Andy Messersmith of the Dodgers will be pitching with only a day's time between outings.

"I'm going to use all of my starters and none will get to bat," said confident American League manager Alvin Dark. "We've gone all out to win this thing by resting our pitchers on Sunday and I think it should pay off."

One last minute hitch in Dark's pitching plans, however, was the removal from the squad and later reinstatement of Baltimore's 13-game winner Jim Palmer. Palmer, plagued by tendinitis, was originally scratched from the squad and although he later was put back on the roster it is doubtful that he will see action.

In addition to Blue, 12-7 with a 3.10 ERA this season, Dark will have the pleasure of starting Reggie Jackson (in right field), Joe Rudi (left field), Gene Tenace (first base), and Campy Campaneris (shortstop) from his world champion A's squad. The rest of the lineup will be filled by New York's Bobby Bonds (center field), Thurman Munson (catcher), and Graig Nettles (third), plus Carew, openly bitter last year after getting a quick hook from the game by then manager Dick Williams.

"I know I said a lot of things about never wanting to play in this game again," said Carew, the Minnesota Twins' second baseman who, besides leading both leagues in batting at .372, was also the top over-all All Star vote getter. "But now I'm glad to be here. After talking it over with my wife, I realized the only people I'd be cheating would be the kids."

Dark added that Carew would "play all nine innings, if he's physically able," this time.

The National League, meanwhile, winner of three straight all star contests and 11 of the last 12, was confident that a starting lineup comprised of four Cincinnati Reds, three Los Angeles Dodgers plus Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals could quickly overcome the Americans' renewed optimism.

"If we can't win with this club, then I'm in a slump," said National League manager Walter Alston, who will field first baseman Steve Garvey (.318), third baseman Ron Cey (12 HRs, 55 rbi) and Jimmy Wynn from his own Los Angeles Dodger club along with catcher Johnny Bench (73 rbi), second baseman Joe Morgan (.345, 60 rbi), rightfielder Pete Rose (.319) and shortstop Dave Concepcion from the red hot (10 straight wins) Reds.

Reuss, 10-6 with a 2.23 ERA and the Pirates most effective pitcher this year, will probably be followed in the rotation by knuckler Phil Niekro of the Atlanta Braves and southpaw Randy Jones of the San Diego Padres—two of the NL's starters who did not see action on Sunday. Otherwise, Alston has at his disposal two of baseball's most notable relief specialists, Mike Marshall of the Dodgers and Tug McGraw of the Philadelphia Phillies.

But it is their hitting, as usual, with which the National League expects to continue its winning ways. For after people like Bench, Garvey and Morgan in the starting lineup, there are substitutes like Greg Luzinski of the Phillies.

New Fairground Surface 'Finest In Country'

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Jack Fickler has been around race tracks for many years. That's why his praise of the new racing surface at the State Fairgrounds' track carries special significance.

"The new Lincoln track should be one of the finest in the country," said the state steward at all Nebraska horse race tracks. "I would think that it should satisfy the horsemen."

"This is truly a horseman's track," Fickler continued. "A five-eighths mile track affords better viewing to the patrons than a mile track. Of course, you never know how the track will be until the horses have run over it, but I'd say it's easily the best ever in Lincoln."

From a technical aspect, this is Fickler's analysis of the new racing surface:

—The base has a 95 per cent compaction with about 60 per cent sand and 40 per cent clay and loam.

—The cushion has between 85 90 per cent sand and 10-15 per cent clay with a depth of four inches.

—It has a 20-inch slope toward the inside on the straightaway and a 60-inch slope at the high part of the turns for drainage. "It has the best drainage of any track in the state," Fickler said.

—It is engineered to within one-quarter inch tolerance of the base of the track. Besides that, 10 per cent moisture is maintained in the cushion," Fickler added.

Fickler said a rake-type rail, considered by many as the most desirable kind, has been installed. It has straight posts which lean 10 inches to the inside, thus allowing jockeys who have fallen from their mounts, protection from onrushing horses.

Lincoln will offer horsemen 4 1/2-furlong races for the first time this season. Those races will start on the backstretch giving the horses a long run to the turn.

In Tuesday's featured seventh race, the Kemling Brothers, Inc.'s Patsy's Reign appears to be the horse to catch in the allowance chase for a $2,600 purse.

The 4-year-old filly has four seconds in 13 outings this year for earnings of $10,873, including a second in the $21,525 Coronation Stakes on June 24 at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Since she relishes longer races,

the mile and 70-yards should help Patsy's Reign.

The Golden Ken Stable's Double Bourbon is the strongest challenger to Patsy's Reign. He won his last two races at Ak-Sar-Ben over a route of ground, thus giving the 4-year-old gelding a solid chance to win the first Lincoln feature.

The rest of the six-horse field consists of Mrs. W. F. Frazee's High Rover, Jean Brandvick's Larrijo, D. W. Frank's Trace Of Honey and the Circle S Stable's Villa Fire.

Post time for weekdays will be 5 p.m. until Aug. 2. Weekday post times from 4:30 a.m. through Aug. 16 will be 4:30 p.m. with Saturday post times at 2 p.m. all season.

There will be nine races on Tuesday's opening card and on all Saturdays. Eight races are scheduled for weekdays throughout the 26-day meeting.

No Calls, Please

The Lincoln star sports department will not give Lincoln horse race results on the telephone. All editions will carry complete results and entries for the State Fairgrounds' horse meet.

New Riders

Among the new riders at this season's State Fairgrounds' meet are Rob Williams, son of Daily Racing Form Nebraska correspondent Dean Williams; Bill Stallings, a regular on the Nebraska circuit a few years ago until he started campaigning in the Chicago area; and Terry Barnes, also once a regular Nebraska rider, until he left a few years ago.

Early Daily Double

Fans again will be able to purchase daily double tickets each weekday from 11:30 to 1:30 p.m. Programs will be available and there will be no charge for parking nor admission to the grandstand for the early wagering.

'Little Forms' Unavailable

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

The Daily Racing Form may be the "horsemen's bible," but it still has the production problems of any publishing organization.

Consequently, at least at the start of the 26-day State Fairgrounds horse racing season, there will not be any "little forms" available for the Lincoln races.

"I didn't know anything about it until last Saturday," noted State Fairgrounds' general manager Henry Brandt. "I talked with some guy in Chicago (from the Racing Form) and he told me as soon as the production problems are solved, then we'll get the little forms back.

"He didn't promise me any date or anything, so I really don't know when or if we'll get them here," he noted.

Last year, the entire five-track Nebraska racing circuit switched from 24 to 48-hour entries simply to accommodate the Racing Form. With entries now being drawn two days before the races, it permitted the Form to print a mini-edition with the Nebraska tracks houses' past performances and have it to newsstands the day before the races.

That way, patrons could obtain Tuesday's Form on Monday and get a "head-start" on handicapping.

The first two stops on the Nebraska circuit, Fanner Park in Grand Island and Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha, had little forms this year the day before the races and the regular edition on the day of the races.

Lincoln apparently will just have the regular edition of the Racing Form on the day of the races.

"I told him (Form Chicago executive) to get on the stick," he said. "I want them (little forms) as soon as possible. We went to 48-hour entries simply to help the Form out.

Brandt said it was practically impossible to switch to 24-hour entries now that horsemen and the racing secretary's office have been geared to 48-hour entries.

Although Brandt declined to answer if he thought not having the little forms the day before the races would hurt the mutual handle, a spokesman for Ak-Sar-Ben felt that was one reason for the increased attendance and handle at the Omaha track.

"It's been a big thing here for two years and the past several years at Oaklawn Park in Hot Springs, Ark.," he said.

The decision was apparently made by Racing Form executives late last week.

Nebraska Racing Form personnel said they knew nothing about the decision to stop Lincoln mini-forms until late last week.

Hazel Park in Detroit opens Tuesday — the same day as the State Fairgrounds, and the Form officials apparently decided production schedules made it easier to provide Hazel with the pre-dated form.

"Hopefully, we can get the little forms soon," Brandt said.

Rain Possible

Milwaukee (UPI) — The weather forecast for Tuesday night's All-Star game is increased cloudiness with a chance of thunderstorms and showers. Game time is 7:30 p.m. CDT.

Veteran Tops 'Whiz Kids'

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Omaha — Four of the "whiz kids" of Nebraska women's golf were among top seven qualifiers Monday in the 59th Nebraska Women's Golf Association championship at the Omaha Field Club.

But it was a veteran campaigner, Mrs. S. J. (Betty) Marchese of Omaha, who won the medal with a 76, nine-over-par for the 5,417-yard par, 67 course.

Mrs. Marchese, 1966 state champion and runnerup in 1949, 1951 and 1958, finished two shots in front of Omaha's Theresa Wanek, last year's runner up in the Nebraska Junior Girls' State meet.

"I was chipping real well, but my woods didn't have a good 'click' to them," Mrs. Marchese said. Woods normally are the best part of her game.

Describing herself as a twice-a-week golfer, Mrs. Marchese putted well, requiring just 30. Her worst hole came on the 145-yard hole, par 3, 16th, when a wedge shot from bare dirt misfired and cost her two shots to par.

She got one of them back with a 12-foot putt for a birdie on the 17th hole.

Last year's medalist, Christie Schwartzkopf, didn't compete. The rule's committee on Sunday decided she wasn't eligible. She is in the process of moving back to Lincoln after working in Denver, Colo. since last September.

Defending champion Jean Hyland qualified for the championship with an 80, but she wasn't satisfied with her play.

"I wasn't putting well," the Lincolnite said. "I missed a couple of short ones and needed 35 putts during the round. I also was slicing the ball, which was getting me into trouble. I've been slicing for a week now."

Mrs. Dorothy Schwartzkopf qualified with an 81 despite an out-of-bounds host on 12th hole and a four-putt green on the 15th.

The "whiz kid" group, in addition to Wanek, including Lynne Merwald, an Omaha woman who attends Arizona State, with a 79; and Laurie Glass of Beatrice and Anne Mariucci, an Arizona golfer from Omaha, both with 80s.

Mariucci, who just turned 18, could be the one to beat, when match play begins Tuesday morning. Her 80 included a triple-bogey 7 on the fifth hole when she tried to "cut the corner" on the dogleg and didn't make it.

She recently nipped Merwald for the Omaha Women's Championship.

Her roommate at Arizona, where she is a pre-law major, Nanette Circo, failed to make the championship flight.

Lincoln school teacher, Mrs. Nancy Teague, a semifinalist last year, also had an 85. "I can't play any worse than I played today," she said, recounting six three-putt greens and a triple bogey on the final hole.

Upgrading Slated For LHS' Oval

By DAVE SITTLER

Lincoln prep athletics — especially track — may reap the benefits of new athletic facility in the near future.

Definite steps have been taken in recent weeks to refurbish and expand the Lincoln High Oval, which is part of the Lincoln High School complex at 22nd and J streets.

According to Superintendent of Schools Dr. John Prasch, the Lincoln Public Schools has been purchasing land west of the Oval.

"All the land we have been seeking has now been purchased except for one lot," Prasch acknowledged Monday.

Once the home of prep football action for the Capital City high schools before being retired in 1962 when Seacrest Field was dedicated, the refurbished Oval will not cater to football, Prasch said.

"There are no plans to move any varsity football competition from Seacrest," he said.

Prasch did indicate that varsity track for the Lincoln schools could be the biggest beneficiary from the land purchase.

"The city has only one all-weather track (at Lincoln East) at the present time," Prasch said. "The new track would be able to handle girls and boys varsity track competition as well as junior high sports."

"Lincoln High is short of space for its physical education programs," Prasch continued. "The purchase of this new property would help improve the physical education programs not only on the varsity level but also the intramural programs."

While most of the land has been purchased, plans for the actual use of the new property will not be completely decided until this fall, Prasch said.

"While there are many things under consideration, everything is still in the long range planning stage at the moment," he said. "The Lincoln Public school board meeting in September will develop those long-range plans more fully."

Whatever is decided in those September meetings, it appears the Lincoln High Oval will once again experience the cheers of athletic competition which thrilled thousands of fans for 39 years.

Denver Inks Thompson, Sends Trio To Squires

DENVER (UPI) — The Denver Nuggets signed All-American forward David Thompson of North Carolina State Monday, making him the first No. 1 draft pick of the National Basketball Association to sign with the eight-year-old American Basketball Association.

For the rights to Thompson, drafted by the ABA Virginia franchise, the Nuggets sent the Squires starting guard Mack Calvin, starting center Mike Green and reserve forward Jan van Breda Kolff. Denver also received forward George Irvine.

Terms of Thompson's contract, a multi-year, multi-million dollar pact, were not released, but it was reported the player would receive around $2.5 million. President-General Manager Carl Scheer of the Nuggets said, "David turned 21

Sunday and I would have to say he is one of the most secure 21-year-olds I have ever known."

The Nuggets actually came to agreement with Thompson last week but announcement of the signing of the 6-5 forward, who averaged 26.8 points and 8.1 rebounds during his college career while twice earning UPI player of the year honors, was delayed pending the sale of the Nuggets to a local group headed by Scheer.

Thompson was made the opening pick of the NBA draft by Atlanta, which also selected Marvin Webster of Morgan State as the third player in the NBA draft. Both signed with Denver.

The swap and the departure of Calvin and van Breda Kolff left the Nuggets with a questionable back court and coach Larry Brown said the team "might make some moves before the season begins."

The Nuggets are interested in guards Chuck Williams of Memphis, Al Smith of Utah, George Karl of San Antonio and Bobby Warren of San Antonio.

Thompson said the major factor in his signing with Denver was the city.

"I enjoy the climate, the people and the way I was accepted," said Thompson after disclosing he could have signed with virtually any club in the NBA and had entered negotiations with the New York Knicks.

"Denver also has a winning program and has shown me a desire to provide the city with a championship," he said. "I wanted to be associated with a winning team in a good city and Denver was the only city that offered that."

NU Lands Nebraska Gals

Omaha — When Larry Romjue set out to recruit the University of Nebraska's first women's golf team he stayed close to home and landed four of the top junior gals in Nebraska.

Three of them are competing here this week in the 59th annual Nebraska Women's Golf Association championships.

"He called me and offered me a scholarship," remarked Sharon Slattery of Omaha after she shot an 83 to qualify for the championship flight Monday at the Omaha Field Club.

How did Romjue find out about the 17-year-old Miss Slattery? "Being a member of the Marian High School team which won the state championship helped," the pert red-head said. "He also saw me play in the junior girls state meet last year at the Lincoln Country Club."

Ironically, one of her teammates-to-be Lincoln's Jane Deeter, has been a thorn in her side in the last two junior meets. Miss Slattery has lost to Jane by identical scores each time, one-up in 22 holes.

Deeter shot an 86 and the other future NU gal golfer Debbie Reed also of Lincoln came in with an 84. She lost in a playoff for a spot in the championship flight. The other Nebraska recruit Kathy Morrissey of Syracuse, isn't playing in the tournament.

The Golfing Slattery Family

Sharon comes by her golfing talents naturally — or, to put it another way, it was inevitable that she would play the game.

Her grandfather, Dr. Eugene Slattery, was State Men's Amateur Champion back in 1925 and her grandmother Mrs. Claire Slattery, is playing in this year's state tourney. Grandma, however, didn't do too well Monday, coming in with a 108.

Sharon, who will study physical education and probably biology at Nebraska, is only in her fourth year of competition in golf.

"Mr. Romjue worked with me this spring and has changed my golf swing completely," she said. "I have to get with him again, though. I went back to my old swing for this tournament."

Miss Slattery had an "exciting" start Monday morning. Her golf cart caught fire on the second hole and a different one had to be delivered to her.

"I was hitting my drives real good. And I putted in regulation (36), but my second shots weren't accurate," she recalled. A pair of double bogies marred an otherwise steady round.

She hit out of bounds on the par-4 11th hole for one of them. And then used the wrong club for her second shot on 13 after "a super" drive and got in a sand trap. She had the long drive on the 18th hole. "I just missed a few birdies," she added.

The Nebraska women's golf team will play both in the fall and spring, according to Miss Slattery.

"I think coach Romjue has scheduled three tournaments in the fall and two in the spring," she said. "There's also a possibility of playing in the nationals. (AIAW) in the spring. He's also trying for some dual matches."

Canon. For copy quality that can't be duplicated.

On the outside the NP-L7 plain paper copier may look like other convenience copiers. But that's where the resemblance ends.

Inside, it incorporates a unique technology developed by Canon. And razor-sharp Canon optics, which are acclaimed by camera pros worldwide.

The result—copies so clean and crisp they actually look printed. Black areas come out black. White areas stay pure white. Even photographs are reproduced to near perfection.

And this convenience copier really lives up to the name, featuring rapid sheet mode that yields up to 30 copies per minute, plus book mode. It uses plain paper in standard sizes up to 11x17 ledger. And it's compact, easy to operate, and requires no special wiring.

Devaney, Zumberge Defend Give-Away Of NU Football Tickets

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

University of Nebraska officials Monday defended the distribution of free football tickets to public officials, news executives, athletes, prospective recruits and supporters of NU's athletic programs.

Other universities do the same thing, Athletic Director Bob Devaney said.

"And there's nothing improper in what we're doing," Lincoln Chancellor James Zumberge told a Legislative Council executive board study subcommittee.

But Sen. John Cavanaugh III of Omaha, subcommittee chairman, suggested that there might be more public "understanding" of the matter if NU adopted "an official policy" on the distribution of free tickets.

Kermit Wagner of Schuyler, president of the Board of Regents, said he would "guess" that the board will adopt "a comprehensive ticket policy" once it receives recommendations from a regents committee now studying the issue.

Wagner said the committee may report its findings to the board at its next meeting July 26.

Devaney told Cavanaugh that he is not so sure that adoption of a formal policy would help public understanding.

It could give people "something to pick at because many would not study it carefully enough," he said.

Only "a couple of bad seasons in a row" would be likely to ease the public pressure for tickets, he noted.

Cavanaugh said he receives letters from the public containing allegations that you "need influence or pull" to obtain tickets to home football games. That suspicion is only sharpened if the public does not understand how or why some tickets are distributed without cost, he indicated.

Warner Resolution

At issue is a resolution sponsored by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, suggesting that the Board of Regents end the distribution of free public tickets and sell all non-student tickets at one market price.

"I only wanted to indicate to the regents the concurrence of the Legislature if they wish to revise the policy on complimentary tickets," Warner said.

NU now distributes about 2,042 free tickets to home football games.

The largest category of complimentary tickets, about 204, go to the "non-working press," largely newspaper publishers and news executives and radio and television executives.

Perhaps, Cavanaugh suggested, NU has been "excessively complimentary" to the media, which may be "overly indulged."

Sen. Wally Barnett noted that the "press" receives two-and-one-half as many free tickets as state senators.

"But I haven't seen much reporting of that," he said.

Regents' Business

Actually, Barnett said, NU's ticket policy is "none of our business" and should be left to the Board of Regents.

Other free tickets include 138 for public officials other than the regents, 106 for the 11 regents, 70 for the university administration and 1,524 through the athletic department for players, coaches, recruits, the press actually covering the game and athletic program supporters.

Devaney said tickets are given to senators "not to influence them," but because they "deserve" them as "what you might call a fringe benefit."

Warner said he is concerned about "the gratuities, gifts and favors which public officials are accorded."

Wagner said the current distribution of tickets has developed more through administrative than regental action. But the responsibility to fix policy belongs to the regents, he agreed.

The regents have discussed another stadium addition to ease the public pressure for tickets, Wagner said, but found the cost to be "prohibitive."

Distribution of tickets is a "sensitive" matter only because of "the great competition to obtain season tickets," Zumberge noted.

Memorial Stadium seats some 76,000 fans.

Traffic To Snow Shoe, Pa., Is Delayed

When a plane comes down on the highway, cars face delay. This plane, piloted by Charles R. Moyer of Carrollton, Ohio, was forced by thunderstorms to land in a field. The only way to get the airplane out was to stop traffic for takeoff from the highway. The Pennsylvania state trooper, right, directed traffic on the road near Snow Shoe, Pa., to give the pilot room to maneuver. And the takeoff was successful.

Thone Proposes Holding A National 'Energy Day'

Washington (UPI) — America needs to organize an "Energy Day" that would have at least the impact of "Earth Day" in 1970, Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., said Monday.

In his weekly newsletter, the Republican congressman said he hoped the "Energy Day" would attract the same types of people who participated in "Earth Day."

He described such persons as "those who hate to see the earth despoiled unnecessarily, those worried about the future of their planet and those concerned with waste of irreplaceable natural resources."

Additionally, he said, it "ought to get the attention of all those only interested in saving a buck."

Thone said the "most obvious" aspect of this country's present energy crisis is that it will be dependent this year on other nations for 38% of its petroleum.

He noted it has been estimated 38% of the energy consumed in the United States is wasted. "Since oil provides only 75% of our energy, and 38% of our oil is imported, we could end oil imports by stopping our waste of energy," he said.

While full development and utilization of other energy resources is necessary, there are other ways to reduce the need of imports, Thone said.

He said if all the aluminum wasted were recycled, that would eliminate oil imports for two days a year and if all the combustible trash now buried or burned just to get rid of it were used to create energy, oil imports could be ended for 28 days.

Thone said since he came to Congress in 1971, he has advocated federal action for reclamation of waste and added one thing that is needed is a change in the tax laws.

"As I have been pointing out for 4½ years, Uncle Sam gives those who produce virgin natural resources tax breaks that are not available to those who produce recycled materials," Thone said.

He also advocated more research on the most economical methods of recycling.

Launch Director:

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Walter Kapryan will be hobbling around the launch control center here Tuesday when he directs the countdown on the rocket that is to start American astronauts on their joint space mission with Russian Cosmonauts.

Kapryan, director of launch operations at the space center, was walking on a beach Friday when he stepped on a beached catfish.

Surgery was required to remove the fish's two-inch-long spike, which cut through a tendon on his right foot and lodged in a bone near the little toe.

Council Eyes NU Spending Request

The Legislative Council's executive board Monday balked at the University of Nebraska's request for routine authority to spend revenue bond money for an East Campus student union and for dormitory improvements.

Senators forwarded the request to the Legislature's Appropriations Committee for its recommendation.

NU had requested executive board approval for the expenditure, as required by state law.

The law provides that any expenditure from revenue bond surplus or replacement funds be approved by the Legislature, or by the board when the Unicameral is not in session.

Board members questioned why the authorization was not sought earlier this year when the Legislature held a five-month session.

"It seems strange to me that the decision was requested after the legislative session," Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln said.

Simpson wondered about "the possibility that the university would like to bypass the Appropriations Committee," whose fiscal staff "might get into it deeper" than the executive board would.

Simpson is a member of the appropriations unit.

The board then agreed with Omaha Sen. John Cavanaugh's suggestion that the request be bucked to the committee for its consideration.

NU asked for authority to spend an additional $1,331,500 to construct a $4.3 million student union on the East Campus, and $680,450 for refurbishment and fire and safety improvements at student facilities.

A $3,008,500 expenditure for the student union project was approved by the board in October 1973.

Increased costs resulted from final completion of plans and inflationary factors, NU Corporation Secretary William Swanson wrote the board.

The building would include student meeting, lounge, food service and recreational areas.

Plans and contract awards have been approved by the Board of Regents and by the governor, Swanson said.

Students on the East Campus were initially promised a student union facility in 1941, and have been paying a student union fee since at least 1938, senators were told.

The $680,450 expenditure would provide for improvements at dormitories and other student facilities, including food service units, the downtown campus student union and health center.

A $380,000 expenditure would go for fire and safety renovations, while $300,430

Money for the requested projects is contained in current revenue bond surplus and replacement funds.

Kelly, who said the abstract designs approved for the project have created "a rumble in central Nebraska," was given authority to hold public hearings on the matter, if he wishes.

But the senator said he does not intend to "get into a hassle" on the issue.

to "leave the billboards up (on the interstate highway and forget the sculptures."

The board also decided to give one of two discarded legislative voting machine recorders to the West Virginia Legislature, which had requested the unit for parts. The second old recorder will stay with the Historical Society.

Omaha School District To Take Integration Order To High Court

Omaha (AP)—The Omaha School District will challenge an integration order by the U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals.

The decision is to take the case to the U.S. Supreme Court, but there are no assurances that the high court will consent to hear the case.

Last month, the circuit court ordered the district fully integrated by the beginning of the 1976-77 school year. The first phase of the integration plan, the integration of the district's teaching staff, is to be in operation by this fall.

The school board asked the circuit court to rehear the arguments in the case, but the

School Board Atty. Kenneth Holm said the court's mandate, not integration itself, is the real question in the case.

The district has undertaken several voluntary moves toward integration, and officials say they say they hope Phase I of the court-ordered integration program can include existing, voluntary programs.

"I think anything we've done so far has been very good," said Superintendent Owen

Knutzen. "People have cooperated to a degree that far exceeds our expectations."

Dr. Paul Kennedy, school board president, said he hopes that the district's voluntary programs, especially the racial balance transfers, will be continued, even after full integration.

Kennedy said the board will have to re-examine the proposed 1975-76 budget to find money for the purchase or lease of buses that will be needed for integration. A team of district staff members has already begun work on statistics on the numbers of students and racial breakdowns in all schools.

Per Capita Income Gain Is Smallest In Nebraska

By The Associated Press
The U.S. Department of Commerce says per capita income in Nebraska rose from $3,606 in 1969 to $4,877 in 1974.

The 35% hike was the smallest gain of any state during the period and Nebraska's rise also was well below the national per capita income average increase of 47%, from $3,705 to $5,434.

The slower growth caused Nebraska to drop in ranking from 20th to 33rd in per capita income among all states.

Nebraska trailed all its neighboring states except South Dakota in 1974 per capita income. South Dakota's figure was $4,218, a boost of 41%.

Farm income was the major contributing factor to the decline.

Dr. Vern Renshaw, University of Nebraska Bureau of Business

Research statistician, said Nebraska's per capita income actually rose to $5,299 in 1971.

However, he said, because of the unstable livestock market and the drought's effect on crops, farm proprietor income dropped 78% in 1974.

Iowa Legion Elects Possehl

Sioux City, Iowa (AP) — Delegates to the Iowa Department of the American Legion convention here have elected Frederick L. Possehl of Anita department commander for the coming year.

Possehl, who served with Army artillery in World War II and continued as a reserve soldier until 1964, succeeds Charles L. Decker of Cedar Rapids.

Regulation Planned For Legislature

Sens. Jerome Warner and John Cavanaugh said Monday that they would draw up proposed conflict of interest regulation for the Legislature and its employees.

At a meeting of a special subcommittee, they said they would put their suggestions in writing and give them to the legislative staff for compilation.

Payment to senators for speeches was a key question debated at the meeting. Sens. Ernie Chambers of Omaha and Loran Schmit of Bellwood said honorariums for speeches should be allowed, but they said they did not object to reporting the income.

However, Chambers said all outside income should be disclosed if honorariums must be reported.

He also asked that senators be prohibited from receiving anything of value from lobbyists. "You can buy some people with a meat loaf sandwich that you could not buy with $1,000," Chambers said, explaining that some people felt they were personally obligated after receiving small favors. Warner, the senator from Waverly, said he has discovered that legislative staff members writing legislation for him were also paid by lobbyists.

First Things First

Tilburg, Holland (UPI) — Only after Margaret Van Zanten, 26, signed a notarial act saying she was willing to have children by Jan Van Eijndhoven did he propose to her. Then they were married. "I think it is quite normal that a man marries with the intention of getting children," Margaret commented. The act did not indicate how large the family was to become.

HAMMER-TAPPING . . . Mrs. Nichols tests plastic.

Who Bangs On Plastics, Freezes Glass Sheets?

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Brock — What Nebraska farm wife has been known to stock her family freezer with panes of glass? Why, the same one who goes around banging samples of plastic with her hammer.

Before the boys in white coats come running, let it be said that Mrs. Robert E. Nichols doesn't do such strange things habitually. The "personal experimentation" has taken place only intermittently and only in the past year.

A former extension home economist for Otoe county, the young wife and mother is an appointee of a national team working on safety standards for architectural glazing materials. Seven meetings in Chicago and Pittsburgh have been devoted to such potential hazards as sliding patio doors and shower stalls.

Thus her personal experiments regarding stress and the influences of temperature. Admittedly her efforts lack the sophistication of data provided by some of her committee colleagues, many of them glazing industry representatives.

"I only wrote an inquiry about the tests last summer and back came a request for me to serve as a consumer representative," said the 1966 UN-L home economics graduate. "It turned out I'm the only person involved who has a rural background, so it's been an interesting and educational experience."

Interestingly, the glazing products are the first to come under scrutiny since creation of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission. Mrs. Nichols noted that while 33 states have safety standards for the materials, neither the federal government nor Nebraska has such regulations.

Although the overall committee has not yet passed on her group's recommendations, some general ones have been set forth. Without getting into technicalities, the Brock woman said these would require that safety materials only be used in doors, tub and shower enclosures and door side lights.

"Not everyone is aware of the fact that glass becomes brittle as it ages," she continued. "And too many people assume that all glass is safety glass. There have been cases, for instance, where children have run into patio doors and were actually beheaded by the shattering glass."

With about two-thirds of the 25-member subcommittee comprised of industry personnel, Mrs. Nichols said the consumers nonetheless managed "real good rapport" with them. She explained that the industries themselves appear anxious to have realistic standards imposed.

The mother of a two-year-old daughter, Jan, the former home economist said it has been interesting to note the reaction of friends to her appointment. Apparently there are no neutrals when it comes to consumerism.

"At least in Nebraska," she observed, "people are either very much for or very much against consumer protection."

71 Was Just Right Time To Finally Get A Diploma

Fullerton (AP) — Mrs. Ruth Zuerlein of Fullerton has received her high school equivalency certificate at the age of 71.

The certificate from Platte College "fulfilled something I wanted to do for a long time," she said. Her high school education was interrupted in 1917.

Mary Badura, an elementary school teacher at Fullerton, heard about Mrs. Zuerlein's wish for a diploma and started looking into the matter.

For a $7 fee, Mrs. Zuerlein, a resident of Fullerton Manor, took a series of five tests, each lasting two hours.

"She passed with flying colors," said Mrs. Robert Sharples, activities director at the home.

"I feel good over the whole deal," Mrs. Zuerlein said. "Now I want to go on in nursing."

Mrs. Ruth Zuerlein

She worked 30 years as an assistant to Dr. William Reeder, going on house calls and at times taking nursing patients into her home.

Mrs. Zuerlein has five children, 34 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Writer Thinks It's Time To Cancel All-Star Game

By BILL GLEASON

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

I think it is time to cancel the All-Star baseball game. I come to that conclusion because it is obvious that the players do not want the All-Star game. (I don't mean this player or that player but The Players.)

It has been said that when the participants in a project or a promotion are unable to understand the purpose of what they are doing, that project or promotion has lost all meaning.

That is precisely what has happened with the All-Star game. Most contemporary players seem to believe that the All-Star game is staged for these two purposes:

- 1 — To provide revenues for the players' pension fund.
- 2 — To give players, managers, coaches a three-day holiday in the middle of the season.

Honestly, sports fans, I get mighty weary of listening to athletes talk about "The All-Star break, as though it were

For the benefit of those players who keep wondering "why are we doing this?" I offer a brief refresher course.

The original purpose of the All-Star game was to bring together the finest players in the two leagues and have them play a game.

Players are always saying, "The game doesn't prove which league is the best." I've noticed that the players from the losing league are the ones who give us that routine most often.

The fact is that the outcome of the All-Star game does convince the fans that one league is superior to another.

The Oakland A's have won three successive World Series, but the domination by Finley's big green men hasn't persuaded very many fans that the balance of power has swung to the American League. The National continues to be the league" because its Stars win the mid-summer game so frequently.

And the National wins for a reason that the fans has no difficulty in perceiving. The National wins because it has more outstanding players than the American does.

I am contemptuous of those players and managers who, give a chance to do something for their profession, solemnly declare, "I'd rather spend the All-Star break with my family."

In the first place, most of those guys are with their families during half the season unless they are too cheap to bring the wife and kids to the city of the home team. In the second place, a three-day rest stop in the schedule doesn't provide sufficient time for a player to go back home for a visit with dear old mom.

For those players who are lost in the mists of time, I explain that the "All-Star break" means just that. Back in 1933, when the game began, almost no professional baseball players traveled by airplane. They had to be given time to journey by train to where the All-Star game was to be played.

A second and equally important reason for the "break" was to provide rest for the arms of those pitchers chosen to work a few innings in the All-Star game.

Entirely too many modern pitchers develop tired arms the week before they are to appear in the All-Star game. A National League player who shall be nameless because he is not alone in his unprofessionalism declined to participate in the Tuesday game. His reason? "Personal commitments to fulfill." This fellow has been selected for four All-Star games now, has shown up once.

I have a suggestion for the commissioner's office and for the players' union. Any player chosen for an All-Star team, by vote or selection, must appear in uniform on the day of the game OR be suspended from league play for two weeks and fined $1,000.

That would be a real All-Star break. If The Players do not care to take the game as seriously as the fans do, the All-Star game should be canceled.

Two lefthanders, the Oakland A's Vida Blue, left and the Pittsburgh Pirates' Jerry Reuss, were named starters Monday for Tuesday night's All-Star game in Milwaukee.

Blue, Reuss Named All-Stars' Starters

THE LINCOLN STAR

Sports

Tuesday, July 15, 1975 17

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The American League, hoping to parlay a combination of well-rested pitchers, a rejuvenated Rod Carew and five world champion Oakland starters into its first All Star victory in four years, sends southpaw Vida Blue against the National League and lefthander Jerry Reuss Tuesday night in baseball's 46th mid-summer showcase of talent.

After a directive by league president Lee MacPhail that the clubs rest their ace pitchers Sunday prior to the All Star game, the Americans suddenly find themselves with the luxury of having Oakland's Blue, Kansas City's Steve Busby, New York's Catfish Hunter, etc., rested and ready while National League aces like Tom Seaver of the Mets and Andy Messersmith of the Dodgers will be pitching with only a day's time between outings.

"I'm going to use all of my starters and none will get to bat," said confident American League manager Alvin Dark. "We've gone all out to win this thing by resting our pitchers on Sunday and I think it should pay off."

One last minute hitch in Dark's pitching plans, however, was the removal from the squad and later reinstatement of Baltimore's 13-game winner Jim Palmer. Palmer, plagued by tendinitis, was originally scratched from the squad and although he later was put back on the roster it is doubtful that he will see action.

In addition to Blue, 12-7 with a 3.10 ERA this season, Dark will have the pleasure of starting Reggie Jackson (in right field), Joe Rudi (left field), Gene Tenace (first base), and Campy Campaneris (shortstop) from his world champion A's squad. The rest of the lineup will be filled by New York's Bobby Bonds (center field), Thurman Munson (catcher), and Graig Nettles (third), plus Carew, openly bitter last year after getting a quick hook from the game by then manager Dick Williams.

"I know I said a lot of things about never wanting to play in this game again," said Carew, the Minnesota Twins' second baseman who, besides leading both leagues in batting at .372, was also the top over-all All Star vote getter. "But now I'm glad to be here. After talking it over with my wife, I realized the only people I'd be cheating would be the kids."

Dark added that Carew would "play all nine innings, if he's physically able," this time.

The National League, meanwhile, winner of three straight all star contests and 11 of the last 12, was confident that a starting lineup comprised of four Cincinnati Reds, three Los Angeles

Dodgers plus Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals could quickly overcome the Americans' renewed optimism.

"If we can't win with this club, then I'm in a slump," said

National League manager Walter Alton, who will field

first baseman Steve Garvey (.318), third baseman Ron Cey

(12 HRs, 55 RBI) and Jimmy Wynn

catcher Johnny Bench (73 RBI), second baseman Joe Morgan (.345, 60 RBI), rightfielder Pete Rose

(.319) and shortstop Dave Concepcion from the red hot (10 straight wins) Reds.

Reuss, 10-6 with a 2.23 ERA and the Pirates most effective pitcher

this year, will probably be followed in the rotation by knuckler Phil Niekro of the Atlanta Braves and southpaw

Atlanta Jones of the San Diego Padres—two of the NL's starters who did not see action on Sunday.

Otherwise, Alton has at his disposal two of baseball's most notable relief specialists, Mike Marshall of the Dodgers and Tug McGraw of the Philadelphia

Phillies.

But it is their hitting, as usual, with which the National League expects to continue its winning ways. For after people like

Bench, Garvey and Morgan in the starting lineup, there are substitutes like Greg Luzinski of the Phillies.

By MARK GORDON

Star Sports Writer

Jack Fickler has been around race tracks for many years. That's why his praise of the new racing surface at the State Fairgrounds' track carries special significance.

"The new Lincoln track should be one of the finest in the country," said the state steward at all Nebraska horse race tracks. "I would think that it should satisfy the horsemen."

From a technical aspect, this is Fickler's analysis of the new racing surface:

—The base has a 95 per cent compaction with about 60 per cent sand and 40 per cent clay and loam.

—The cushion has between 85 90 per cent sand and 10-15 per cent clay with a depth of four inches.

—It has a 20-inch slope toward the inside on the straightaway and a 60-inch slope at the high part of the turns for drainage. "It has the best drainage of any track in the state," Fickler said.

—"It is engineered to within one-quarter inch tolerance of the base of the track. Besides that, 10 per cent moisture is maintained in the cushion," Fickler added.

Fickler said a rake-type rail, considered by many as the most desirable kind, has been installed. It has straight posts which lean 10 inches to the inside, thus allowing jockeys who have fallen from their mounts, protection from onrushing horses.

Lincoln will offer horsemen 4 1/2-furlong races for the first time this season. Those races will start on the backstretch giving the horses a long run to the turn.

In Tuesday's featured seventh race, the Kemling Brothers, Inc.'s Patsy's Reign appears to be the horse to catch in the allowance chase for a $2,600 purse.

The 4-year-old filly has four seconds in 13 outings this year for earnings of $10,873, including a second in the $21,525 Coronation Stakes on June 24 at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Since she relishes longer races,

the mile and 70-yards should help Patsy's Reign.

The Golden Ken Stable's Double Bourbon is the strongest challenger to Patsy's Reign. He won his last two races at Ak-Sar-Ben over a route of ground, thus giving the 4-year-old gelding a solid chance to win the first Lincoln feature.

The rest of the six-horse field consists of Mrs. W. F. Frazee's High Rover, Jean Brandvick's Larrigo, D. W. Frank's Trace Of Honey and the Circle S Stable's Villa Fire.

Post time for weekdays will be 5 p.m. until Aug. 2. Weekday post times from Aug. 4 through Aug. 16 will be 4:30 p.m. with Saturday post times at 2 p.m. all season.

There will be nine races on Tuesday's opening card and on all Saturdays. Eight races are scheduled for weekdays throughout the 26-day meeting.

No Calls, Please

The Lincoln star sports department will not give Lincoln horse race results on the telephone. All editions will carry complete results and entries for the State Fairgrounds' horse meet.

New Riders

Among the new riders at this season's State Fairgrounds' meet are Rob Williams, son of Daily Racing Form Nebraska correspondent Dean Williams; Bill Stallings, a regular on the Nebraska circuit a few years ago until he started campaigning in the Chicago area; and Terry Barnes, also once a regular Nebraska rider, until he left a few years ago.

Early Daily Double

Fans again will be able to purchase daily double tickets each weekday from 11:30 to 1:30 p.m. Programs will be available and there will be no charge for parking nor admission to the grandstand for the early wagering.

Veteran Tops 'Whiz Kids'

By BOB OWENS

Star Sports Editor

Omaha — Four of the "whiz kids" of Nebraska women's golf were among top seven qualifiers Monday in the 59th Nebraska Women's Golf Association championship at the Omaha Field Club.

But it was a veteran campaigner, Mrs. S. J. (Betty) Marchese of Omaha, who won the medal with a 76, nine-over-par for the 5,417-yard par, 67 course.

Mrs. Marchese, 1966 state champion and runnerup in 1949, 1951 and 1958, finished two shots in front of Omaha's Theresa Wanek, last year's runner up in the Nebraska Junior Girls' State meet.

"I was chipping real well, but my woods didn't have a good 'click' to them," Mrs. Marchese said. Woods normally are the best part of her game.

Describing herself as a twice-a-week golfer, Mrs. Marchese putted well, requiring just 30. Her worst hole came on the 145-yard hole, par 3, 16th, when a wedge shot from bare dirt misfired and cost her two shots to par.

She got one of them back with a 12-foot putt for a birdie on the 17th hole.

Last year's medalist, Christie Schwartzkopf, didn't compete. The rule's committee on Sunday decided she wasn't eligible. She is in the process of moving back to Lincoln after working in Denver, Colo. since last September.

Defending champion Jean Hyland qualified for the championship with an 80, but she wasn't satisfied with her play.

"I wasn't putting well," the Lincolnite said. "I missed a couple of short ones and needed 35 putts during the round. I also was slicing the ball, which was getting me into trouble. I've been slicing for a week now."

Mrs. Dorothy Schwartzkopf qualified with an 81 despite an out-of-bounds shot on 12th hole and a four-putt green on the 15th.

The "whiz kid" group, in addition to Wanek, including Lynne Merwald, an Omahan who attends Arizona State, with a 79; and Laurie Glass of Beatrice and Anne Mariucci, an Arizona golfer from Omaha, both with 80s.

Mariucci, who just turned 18, could be the one to beat, when match play begins Tuesday morning. Her 80 included a triple-bogey 7 on the fifth hole when she tried to "cut the corner" on the dogleg and didn't make it.

She recently nipped Merwald for the Omaha Women's Championship.

Her roommate at Arizona, where she is a pre-law major, Nanette Circo, failed to make the championship flight.

Lincoln school teacher, Mrs. Nancy Teague, a semifinalist last year, also had an 85. "I can't play any worse than I played today," she said, recounting six three-putt greens and a triple bogey on the final hole.

'Little Forms' Unavailable

By MARK GORDON

Star Sports Writer

The Daily Racing Form may be the "horsemen's bible," but it still has the production problems of any publishing organization.

Consequently, at least at the start of the 26-day State Fairgrounds horse racing season, there will not be any "little forms" available for the Lincoln races.

"I didn't know anything about it until last Saturday," noted State Fairgrounds' general manager Henry Brandt. "I talked with some guy in Chicago (from the Racing Form) and he told me as soon as the production problems are solved, then we'll get the little forms back.

"He didn't promise me any date or anything, so I really don't know when or if we'll get them here," he noted.

Last year, the entire five-track Nebraska racing circuit switched from 24 to 48-hour entries simply to accommodate the Racing Form. With entries now being drawn two days before the races, it permitted the Form to print a mini-edition with the Nebraska tracks houses' past performances and have it to newstands the day before the races.

That way, patrons could obtain Tuesday's Form on Monday and get a "head-start" on handicapping.

The first two stops on the Nebraska circuit, Fanner Park in Grand Island and Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha, had little forms this year the day before the races and the regular edition on the day of the races.

Lincoln apparently will just have the regular edition of the Racing Form on the day of the races.

"I told him (Form Chicago executive) to get on the stick," he said. "I want them (little forms) as soon as possible. We went to 48-hour entries simply to help the Form out."

Brandt said it was practically impossible to switch to 24-hour entries now that horsemen and the racing secretary's office have been geared to 48-hour entries.

Although Brandt declined to answer if he thought not having the little forms the day before the races would hurt the mutual handle, a spokesman for Ak-Sar-Ben felt that was one reason for the increased attendance and handle at the Omaha track.

"It's been a big thing here for two years and the past several years at Oaklawn Park in Hot Springs, Ark.," he said.

The decision was apparently made by Racing Form executives late last week.

Nebraska Racing Form personnel said they knew nothing about the decision to stop Lincoln mini-forms until late last week.

Hazel Park in Detroit opens Tuesday — the same day as the State Fairgrounds, and the Form officials apparently decided production schedules made it easier to provide Hazel with the pre-dated form.

"Hopefully, we can get the little forms soon," Brandt said.

Rain Possible

Denver Inks Thompson, Sends Trio To Squires

DENVER (UPI) — The Denver Nuggets signed All-American forward David Thompson of North Carolina State Monday, making him the first No. 1 draft pick of the National Basketball Association to sign with the eight-year-old American Basketball Association.

For the rights to Thompson, drafted by the ABA Virginia franchise, the Nuggets sent the Squires starting guard Mack Calvin, starting center Mike Green and reserve forward Jan van Breda Kolff. Denver also received forward George Irvine.

Terms of Thompson's contract, a multi-year, multimillion dollar pact, were not released, but it was reported the player would receive around $2.5 million. President-General Manager Carl Scheer of the Nuggets said, "David turned 21

Sunday and I would have to say he is one of the most secure 21-year-olds I have ever known."

The Nuggets actually came to agreement with Thompson last week but announcement of the signing of the 6-5 forward, who averaged 28.8 points and 8.1 rebounds during his college career while twice earning UPI player of the year honors, was delayed pending the sale of the Nuggets to a local group headed by Scheer.

Thompson was made the opening pick of the NBA draft by Atlanta, which also selected Marvin Webster of Morgan State as the third player in the NBA draft. Both signed with Denver.

The swap and the departure of Calvin and van Breda Kolff left the Nuggets with a questionable back court and coach Larry Brown said the team "might make some moves before the season begins."

The Nuggets are interested in guards Chuck Williams of Memphis, Al Smith of Utah, George Karl of San Antonio and Bobby Warren of San Antonio.

Thompson said the major factor in his signing with Denver was the city.

"I enjoy the climate, the people and the way I was accepted," said Thompson after disclosing he could have signed with virtually any club in the NBA and had entered negotiations with the New York Knicks.

"Denver also has a winning program and has shown me a desire to provide the city with a championship," he said. "I wanted to be associated with a winning team in a good city and Denver was the only city that offered that."

NU Lands Nebraska Gals

Omaha — When Larry Romjue set out to recruit the University of Nebraska's first women's golf team he stayed close to home and landed four of the top junior girls in Nebraska.

Three of them are competing here this week in the 50th annual Nebraska Women's Golf Association championships.

"He called me and offered me a scholarship," remarked Sharon Slattery of Omaha after she shot an 83 to qualify for the championship flight Monday at the Omaha Field Club.

How did Romjue find out about the 17-year-old Miss Slattery? "Being a member of the Marian High School team which won the state championship helped," the pert red-head said. "He also saw me play in the junior girls state meet last year at the Lincoln Country Club."

Ironically, one of her teammates-to-be Lincoln's Jane Deeter, has been a thorn in her side in the last two junior meets. Miss Slattery has lost to Jane by identical scores each time, one-up in 22 holes.

Deeter shot an 86 and the other future NU gal golfer Debbie Reed also of Lincoln came in with an 84. She lost in a playoff for a spot in the championship flight. The other Nebraska recruit Kathy Morrissey of Syracuse, isn't playing in the tournament.

The Golfing Slattery Family

Sharon comes by her golfing talents naturally — or, to put it another way, it was inevitable that she would play the game.

Her grandfather, Dr. Eugene Slattery, was State Men's Amateur Champion back in 1925 and her grandmother Mrs. Claire Slattery, is playing in this year's state tourney. Grandma, however, didn't do too well Monday, coming in with a 188.

Sharon, who will study physical education and probably biology at Nebraska, is only in her fourth year of competition in golf.

"Mr. Romjue worked with me this spring and has changed my golf swing completely," she said. "I have to get with him again, though. I went back to my old swing for this tournament."

Miss Slattery had an "exciting" start Monday morning. Her golf cart caught fire on the second hole and a different one had to be delivered to her.

"I was hitting my drives real good. And I putted in regulation (36), but my second shots weren't accurate," she recalled. A pair of double bogies marred an otherwise steady round.

She hit out of bounds on the par-4 11th hole for one of them. And then used the wrong club for her second shot on 13 after "a super" drive and got in a sand trap. She had the long drive on the 18th hole. "I just missed a few birds," she added.

The Nebraska women's golf team will play both in the fall and spring, according to Miss Slattery.

"I think coach Romjue has scheduled three tournaments in the fall and two in the spring," she said. "There's also a possibility of playing in the nationals. (AAW) in the spring. He's also trying for some dual matches."

Pizza Hut Halts Stan's Lounge

Dwight Clum allowed only four hits and Rod Yokel slammed a home run to help Pizza Hut snap Stan's Lounge's 16-game winning streak, and pitcher John Jackson's nine-game winning streak as Pizza Hut downed Stan's 4-0 in AAA fast pitch softball action Monday night at Ballard Field.

In the opening game Monte Steenson hit a home run and drove in three runs to lead Dick Flynn's Buick over Dean Brothers, 5-3.

Ken Navritil fired a one-hitter and downed the last 15 batters he faced to pace Citizen's State Bank to a 9-1 win over Racquet Lounge.

Darbro Captures Legion Tourney

Guinia finished second and Sullivan third, while Merlon Guilford of Hordville notched the fourth spot with a 156 stroke total.

Mann Wins Title

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Carol Mann just knew the $65,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament Monday was hers. And it was.

"I had the same motel room number, 106, as Medina. I thought about that a lot," the 6-foot-3 blonde said Monday after winning the storm-delayed LPGA event.

Medina, Ohio, was Miss Mann's other 1975 triumph.

On Monday, she knocked in a 2½-foot par putt on the final hole for a final one-over-par 73. Her 209 total put her seven under par for the 54-hole tournament and one shot ahead of Jan Ferraris.

Miss Mann had to play her final four holes Monday while Miss Ferraris scrambled to a par on the lone hole she had left on the Riviera Country Club course. She finished with a 69—210 for $6,700 and her second straight runner-up role.

Carole Jo Skala, who shared with a 70 Sunday, was third at 211 over the 6,200-yard layout.

Laura Baugh finished with a 71 and Sandra Haynie a 72 Monday to share the fourth spot with JoAnne Carner and Australian Penny Pulz at 212.

Aunt Priscilla Seeks Winners

This is my favorite day of all — the day my ponies start running in Lincoln.

But this year, I'm going to change my method of picking winners. I just had a long talk with that smart pony picker for this newspaper, Mark Gordon, and he told me his "secrets" of choosing ponies.

I never realized it could be so easy. Now I can choose the fastest ponies just like he does in his little column.

Since this is the start of a new season, I'm starting with a $104 spree fund for the 26 days of Lincoln ponies.

On Tuesday's opening day, I'm putting my $2 win tickets on Don't Tiger in the fourth and Whirl A Chip in the ninth.

Good luck to you all and I hope you have a fun time at the Lincoln pony track.

Devaney, Zumberge Defend Give-Away Of NU Football Tickets

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

University of Nebraska officials Monday defended the distribution of free football tickets to public officials, news executives, athletes, prospective recruits and supporters of NU's athletic programs.

Other universities do the same thing, Athletic Director Bob Devaney said.

"And there's nothing improper in what we're doing," Lincoln Chancellor James Zumberge told a Legislative Council executive board study subcommittee.

But Sen. John Cavanaugh III of Omaha, subcommittee chairman, suggested that there might be more public "understanding" of the matter if NU adopted "an official policy" on the distribution of free tickets.

Kermit Wagner of Schuyler, president of the Board of Regents, said he would "guess" that the board will adopt "a comprehensive ticket policy" once it receives recommendations from a regents committee now studying the issue.

Wagner said the committee may report its findings to the board at its next meeting July 26.

Devaney told Cavanaugh that he is not so sure that adoption of a formal policy would help public understanding.

It could give people "something to pick at because many would not study it carefully enough," he said.

Only "a couple of bad seasons in a row" would be likely to ease the public pressure for tickets, he noted.

Cavanaugh said he receives letters from the public containing allegations that you "need influence or pull" to obtain tickets to home football games. That suspicion is only sharpened if the public does not understand how or why some tickets are distributed without cost, he indicated.

Warner Resolution

At issue is a resolution sponsored by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, suggesting that the Board of Regents end the distribution of free public tickets and sell all non-student tickets at one market price.

"I only wanted to indicate to the regents the concurrence of the Legislature if they wish to revise the policy on complimentary tickets," Warner said.

NU now distributes about 2,042 free tickets to home football games.

The largest category of complimentary tickets, about 204, go to the "non-working press," largely newspaper publishers and news executives and radio and television executives.

Perhaps, Cavanaugh suggested, NU has been "excessively complimentary" to the media, which may be "overly indulged."

Sen. Wally Barnett noted that the "press" receives two-and-one-half as many free tickets as state senators.

"But I haven't seen much reporting of that," he said.

Regents' Business

Actually, Barnett said, NU's ticket policy is "none of our business" and should be left to the Board of Regents.

Other free tickets include 138 for public officials other than the regents, 106 for the 11 regents, 70 for the university administration and 1,524 through the athletic department for players, coaches, recruits, the press actually covering the game and athletic program supporters.

Devaney said tickets are given to senators "not to influence them," but because they "deserve" them as "what you might call a fringe benefit."

Warner said he is concerned about "the gratuities, gifts and favors which public officials are accorded."

Wagner said the current distribution of tickets has developed more through administrative than regental action. But the responsibility to fix policy belongs to the regents, he agreed.

The regents have discussed another stadium addition to ease the public pressure for tickets, Vagner said, but found the cost to be "prohibitive."

Distribution of tickets is a "sensitive" matter only because of "the great competition to obtain season tickets," Zumberge noted.

Memorial Stadium seats some 76,000 fans.

Traffic To Snow Shoe, Pa., Is Delayed

When a plane comes down on the highway, cars face delay. This plane, piloted by Charles R. Moyer of Carrollton, Ohio, was forced by thunderstorms to land in a field. The only way to get the airplane out was to stop traffic for takeoff from the highway. The Pennsylvania state trooper, right, directed traffic on the road near Snow Shoe, Pa., to give the pilot room to maneuver. And the takeoff was successful.

Council Eyes NU Spending Request

The Legislative Council's executive board Monday balked at the University of Nebraska's request for routine authority to spend revenue bond money for an East Campus student union and for dormitory improvements.

Senators forwarded the request to the Legislature's Appropriations Committee for its recommendation.

NU had requested executive board approval for the expenditure, as required by state law.

The law provides that any expenditure from revenue bond surplus or replacement funds be approved by the Legislature, or by the board when the Unicameral is not in session.

Board members questioned why the authorization was not sought earlier this year when the Legislature held a five-month session.

"It seems strange to me that the decision was requested after the legislative session," Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln said. Simpson wondered about "the possibility that the university would like to bypass the Appropriations Committee," whose fiscal staff "might get into it deeper" than the executive board would.

Simpson is a member of the appropriations unit.

The board then agreed with Omaha Sen. John Cavanaugh's suggestion that the request be bucked to the committee for its consideration.

NU asked for authority to spend an additional $1,331,500 to construct a $4.3 million student union on the East Campus, and $680,450 for refurbishment and fire and safety improvements at student facilities.

A $3,008,500 expenditure for the student union project was approved by the board in October 1973.

Increased costs resulted from final completion of plans and inflationary factors, NU Corporation Secretary William Swanson wrote the board.

The building would include student meeting, lounge, food service and recreational areas.

Plans and contract awards have been approved by the Board of Regents and by the governor, Swanson said.

Students on the East Campus were initially promised a student union facility in 1941, and have been paying a student union fee since at least 1938, senators were told.

The $680,450 expenditure would provide for improvements at dormitories and other student facilities, including food service units, the downtown campus student union and health center.

A $380,000 expenditure would go for fire and safety renovations, while $300,430 would pay for refurbishments. Money for the requested projects is contained in current revenue bond surplus and replacement funds.

In other action, the board named Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island to "look into" the bicentennial sculpture program at Interstate 80 reststops.

Kelly, who said the abstract

designs approved for the project have created "a rumble in central Nebraska," was given authority to hold public hearings on the matter, if he wishes.

But the senator said he does not intend to "get into a hassle" on the issue.

Tongue in cheek, Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood suggested that the state might be better off to "leave the billboards up (on the interstate highway and forget the sculptures."

The board also decided to give one of two discarded legislative voting machine recorders to the West Virginia Legislature, which had requested the unit for parts. The second old recorder will stay with the Historical Society.

Omaha School District To Take Integration Order To High Court

Omaha (AP)—The Omaha School District will challenge an integration order by the U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals.

The decision is to take the case to the U.S. Supreme Court, but there are no assurances that the high court will consent to hear the case.

Last month, the circuit court ordered the district fully integrated by the beginning of the 1976-77 school year. The first phase of the integration plan, the integration of the district's teaching staff, is to be in operation by this fall.

The school board asked the circuit court to rehear the arguments in the case, but the court, in a decision handed down a week ago, rejected the request.

However, in rejecting a rehearing, the court slightly modified the original court order.

School Board Atty. Kenneth Holm said the court's mandate, not integration itself, is the real question in the case.

The district has undertaken several voluntary moves toward integration, and officials say they say they hope Phase I of the court-ordered integration program can include existing, voluntary programs.

"I think anything we've done so far has been very good," said Superintendent Owen

Knutzen. "People have cooperated to a degree that far exceeds our expectations."

Dr. Paul Kennedy, school board president, said he hopes that the district's voluntary programs, especially the racial balance transfers, will be continued, even after full integration.

Kennedy said the board will have to re-examine the proposed 1975-76 budget to find money for the purchase or lease of buses that will be needed for integration. A team of district staff members has already begun work on statistics on the numbers of students and racial breakdowns in all schools.

Per Capita Income Gain Is Smallest In Nebraska

By The Associated Press

The U.S. Department of Commerce says per capita income in Nebraska rose from $3,606 in 1969 to $4,877 in 1974.

The 35% hike was the smallest gain of any state during the period and Nebraska's rise also was well below the national per capita income average increase of 47%, from $3,705 to $5,434.

The slower growth caused Nebraska to drop in ranking from 20th to 33rd in per capita income among all states.

Nebraska trailed all its neighboring states except South Dakota in 1974 per capita income. South Dakota's figure was $4,218, a boost of 41%.

Farm income was the major contributing factor to the decline.

Dr. Vern Renshaw, University of Nebraska Bureau of Business

Research statistician, said Nebraska's per capita income actually rose to $5,299 in 1971.

However, he said, because of the unstable livestock market and the drought's effect on crops, farm proprietor income dropped 78% in 1974.

Iowa Legion Elects Possehl

Sioux City, Iowa (AP) — Delegates to the Iowa Department of the American Legion convention here have elected Frederick L. Possehl of Anita department commander for the coming year.

Possehl, who served with Army artillery in World War II and continued as a reserve soldier until 1964, succeeds Charles L. Decker of Cedar Rapids.

Regulation Planned For Legislature

Sens. Jerome Warner and John Cavanaugh said Monday that they would draw up proposed conflict of interest regulation for the Legislature and its employees.

At a meeting of a special subcommittee, they said they would put their suggestions in writing and give them to the legislative staff for compilation.

Payment to senators for speeches was a key question debated at the meeting. Sens. Ernie Chambers of Omaha and Loran Schmit of Bellwood said honorariums for speeches should be allowed, but they said they did not object to reporting the income.

However, Chambers said all outside income should be disclosed if honorariums must be reported.

He also asked that senators be prohibited from receiving anything of value from lobbyists. "You can buy some people with a meat loaf sandwich that you could not buy with $1,000," Chambers said, explaining that some people felt they were personally obligated after receiving small favors. Warner, the senator from Waverly, said he has discovered that legislative staff members writing legislation for him were also paid by lobbyists.

First Things First

Tilburg, Holland (UPI) — Only after Margreet Van Zanten, 26, signed a notarial act saying she was willing to have children by Jan Van Eijndhoven did he propose to her. Then they were married. "I think it is quite normal that a man marries with the intention of getting children," Margaret commented. The act did not indicate how large the family was to become.

HAMMER-TAPPING . . . Mrs. Nichols tests plastic.

Who Bangs On Plastics, Freezes Glass Sheets?

Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Brook — What Nebraska farm wife has been known to stock her family freezer with panes of glass? Why, the same one who goes around banging samples of plastic with her hammer.

Before the boys in white coats come running, let it be said that Mrs. Robert E. Nichols doesn't do such strange things habitually. The "personal experimentation" has taken place only intermittently and only in the past year.

A former extension home economist for Otoe county, the young wife and mother is an appointee of a national team working on safety standards for architectural glazing materials. Seven meetings in Chicago and Pittsburgh have been devoted to such potential hazards as sliding patio doors and shower stalls.

Thus her personal experiments regarding stress and the influences of temperature. Admittedly her efforts lack the sophistication of data provided by some of her committee colleagues, many of them glazing industry representatives.

"I only wrote an inquiry about the tests last summer and back came a request for me to serve as a consumer representative," said the 1966 UN-L home economics graduate. "It turned out I'm the only person involved who has a rural background, so it's been an interesting and educational experience."

Interestingly, the glazing products are the first to come under scrutiny since creation of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission. Mrs. Nichols noted that while 33 states have safety standards for the materials, neither the federal government nor Nebraska has such regulations.

Although the overall committee has not yet passed on her group's recommendations, some general ones have been set forth. Without getting into technicalities, the Brock woman said these would require that safety materials only be used in doors, tub and shower enclosures and door side lights.

"Not everyone is aware of the fact that glass becomes brittle as it ages," she continued. "And too many people assume that all glass is safety glass. There have been cases, for instance, where children have run into patio doors and were actually beheaded by the shattering glass."

With about two-thirds of the 25-member sub-committee comprised of industry personnel, Mrs. Nichols said the consumers nonetheless managed "real good rapport" with them. She explained that the industries themselves appear anxious to have realistic standards imposed.

The mother of a two-year-old daughter, Jan, the former home economist said it has been interesting to note the reaction of friends to her appointment. Apparently there are no neutrals when it comes to consumerism.

"At least in Nebraska," she observed, "people are either very much for or very much against consumer protection."

71 Was Just Right Time To Finally Get A Diploma

Fullerton (AP) — Mrs. Ruth Zuerlein of Fullerton has received her high school equivalency certificate at the age of 71.

The certificate from Platte College "fulfilled something I wanted to do for a long time," she said. Her high school education was interrupted in 1917.

Mary Badura, an elementary school teacher at Fullerton, heard about Mrs. Zuerlein's wish for a diploma and started looking into the matter.

For a $7 fee, Mrs. Zuerlein, a resident of Fullerton Manor, took a series of five tests, each lasting two hours.

"She passed with flying colors," said Mrs. Robert Sharples, activities director at the home.

Mrs. Ruth Zuerlein

She worked 30 years as an assistant to Dr. William Reeder, going on house calls and at times taking nursing patients into her home.

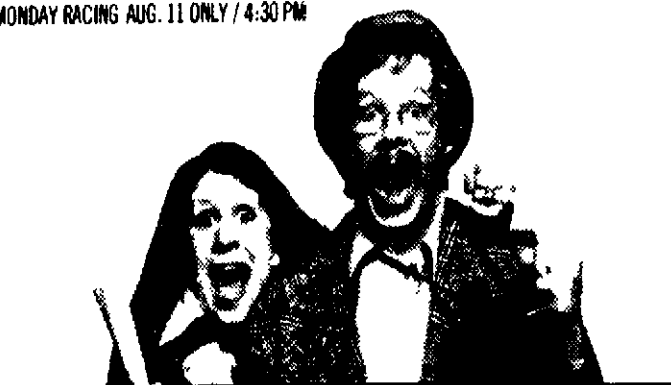

Mrs. Zuerlein has five children, 34 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.
